Storm fells trees in N.H.
finding anyone else buried in the rubble at Stratham Hill Park.
However, as of 11 p.m., reports from the scene indicated that there were no additional dead or injured, according to Colitti.
Meteorologist Joseph Sirard told the Associated Press that the devastation could have been caused by downbursts, which he described as "a rush of wind that comes straight down from a thunderstorm and spreads out when it hits the ground."
The force of the storm knocked down trees all over Stratham, leaving branches and debris on roads. Many minor roads were still closed at 9 last night, and numerous power outages along the seacoast were reported.
State Police Maj. Sheldon P. Sullivan said the wind apparently blew heavy pine trees onto the pavilion, causing it to collapse.
A second, smaller pavilion nearby also was destroyed, but no one was inside, he said.
According to Sullivan, two separate groups, totaling about 100 people, were involved: a group of children with disabilities who were on a Sunday outing and members of a large family holding a reunion.

CLASS HISTORY

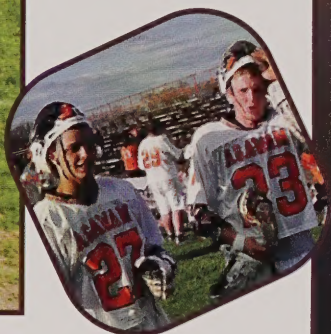

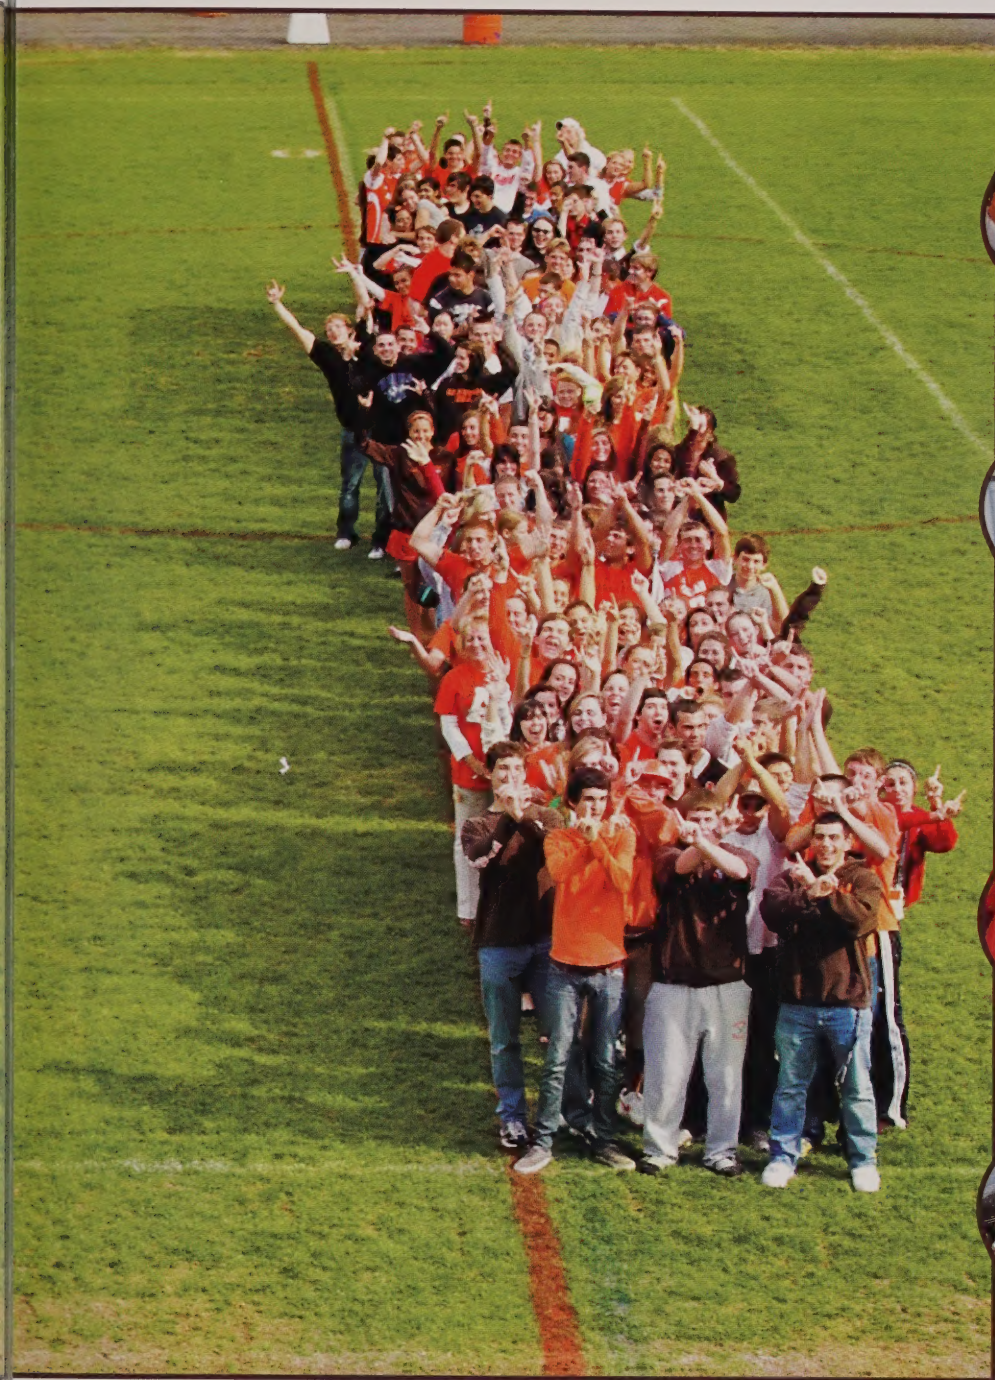

The journey through the four years at Agawam High School has been as unpredictable as the weather, with shifts, twists, and turns occurring at every junction. As freshmen, students entered as they would into a strong storm, many with different attitudes – some optimistic, some nervous, and some unsure of what to think. The high school, like a storm, would be a challenge to traverse, though the prepared and confident AHS students were ready to move onward, despite the difficulty.

Everyone remembers something from their freshman year, be it something amazing or something they'd rather forget. Either way, freshman year is riddled with orientations, introductions, and the process of acclimating to the high school atmosphere. Students did, however, experience their first taste of high school spirit. They attended their first pep rally, tried out for freshman sports, and bought their first class apparel, such as the sweatpants, which many will remember for being just a little bit off in size. The class also shared a winter dance with the Class of 2010, "A Winter Wonderland."

Freshman year passed like a cool autumn breeze on a sunny September day, and when that very breeze began to blow again in the Fall of 2008, the Class of 2011 returned as sophomores. The officers were all set to go, and organized a trip to chilly Boston Harbor. On that sunlit Saturday, the class ventured into the city and infamous Quincy Market during their first successful outing together. In another triumph, the class ordered correctly-fitting sweatpants!

Summer passed yet again, this time a little wetter. The rain cleared up, though, and good weather showed up just in time for the start of their junior year. Nearly done with the required slate of classes, students began to establish their roles within the school. Those already intent on searching for colleges began beefing up their resumes, being inducted into honor societies, taking Advanced Placement classes, and getting involved in the community. In May, students attended their first junior-senior prom, with an "Evening in the Secret Garden." It was a fantastic finish to an exciting year.

And finally, the Class of 2011 entered AHS this past September with one collective goal: Get out! With only nine months until the big day, the seniors were prepared to tackle anything, even the biggest obstacle: Senioritis. College applications would be over with, and activities like the Kid Party and Powder Puff game were huge successes, providing fun for everyone. Agawam was also the recipient of an Advanced Placement grant. This resulted in a huge spike in the number of students taking the initiative to enroll in AP courses, better preparing them for college. Senior athletes also gave it their all in their last chance to make a mark in Agawam's sports. Overall, the seniors went out with a bang, just like a lightning strike during a thunderstorm.

Whether hot or cold, sunny or rainy, in snow or in sleet, the Class of 2011 continues with enthusiasm and excitement to push forward, ready for whatever will come next. The departing graduates will always retain their high school memories – of proms, art festivals, pep rallies, trips, and even the entertaining classes and teachers! Although the departure is bittersweet, with friends parting ways and nostalgia soon to set in, the class's strong and positive personality, as well as the solid foundation they received at Agawam High, will help its members in the challenges they face. These seniors can truly weather the storm!

LIGHTNING ONLY STRIKES ONCE

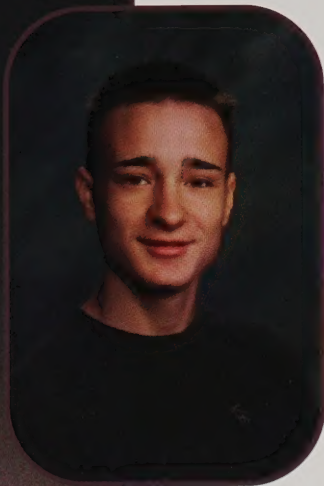

For seniors, lightning really does only strike once: one chance, one opportunity, and one year to make a difference and a lasting impression.

The Class of 2011 will approach their futures with lightning speed, using what they have learned at AHS. Leaving a path of awe behind them, these seniors really are electrifying!

GIVE A ROUND OF THUNDEROUS APPLAUSE FOR THE CLASS ADVISERS THAT SAW US THROUGH OUR FOUR YEARS!

Every class that comes through Agawam High School is assigned faculty advisers. As we, the Class of 2011, entered into our high school years, Mrs. Egan and Mrs. Gomes readily stepped up to take the lead and guide our class. From making sure that dues were paid on time, working with the elected officers to plan events and trips, as well as ordering awesome class clothing, they were always on the ball. As we entered our senior year, they remained true to their charges and planned even more spectacular activities. These advisers took care of it all, whether helping to make signs for the pep rally, or arranging the Powder Puff football game, the Kid Party, and even our trip to High Meadows. The Class of 2011 truly appreciates their efforts to make this one of the happiest times of our lives. We will remember them fondly when we take a nostalgic look back at our time at dear old Agawam High.

*"Friendship is putting someone before yourself."
- Nicholas Vecchiarelli '12*

Above: Shanna Longhi says that Kyle Fraga is her best friend, because "he is always there ... and cares about me."

Right: Abbey Massaro is Brittany Luvera's best friend, because "she is fun, not like everyone else."

Right: Krissy Ugolini is a friend of Philip Preston, because she is the only person he can stand to be around all day every day.

It doesn't matter how old you are, what you're doing in life, or how independent you become as you grow up, nearly everyone has a group of people they can call their friends.

Friendship is an incredibly valuable part of a person's life. At one time or another, each of us may get caught up in sticky situations, become confused at times with life's many challenges, or feel like the world is throwing us one too many curve balls. Things may even get out-of-control, but the consistency of our friendships is what holds us together during the worst of it, and can provide us some awesome memories that last a lifetime.

How do friends affect your life?

"They give support throughout daily life." - Alexis Lussier '12

"They bring out our true character and push us to do better." - Jessica Polaski '12

*"They make my life. I couldn't do it without them. They are my sanity, my saviors, my comic relief, my back up, [and] my support system."
- Shannon Reardon '12*

Right: Miranda Polaski, Jessica Colson, Mari Leclerc, and Jessica Polaski enjoyed playing Powder Puff football together.

Right: Mirela Grbesic and Stephanie Karrasch are best friends, because they totally understand each other.

Below: Hannah Hellstein is exactly like Colleen Keeley. They love the same shows and music.

Right: Friends, like Kamelle Robinson and Quiana Dickson, make Michael Masciadrelli's feel good, so that he leads a happy life.

Below Right: Alexander King says he loves his friends, Meaghan Foley, Kelsey Venne, and Leah Burns, because he can be completely crazy around them.

*"[Friendship means] honesty, loyalty, laughter, and fun."

SENIOR WILL

I, Tiama Callahan, leave three more years to Patsy. Have fun and make the most of it!

I, Robert Carrier, leave Efstratios the slots and a great season to the 2011 Brownies. Do it up boys.

I, Manuela Castrillon, leave my locker "Fonz" to an incoming freshman, as well as many great memories that will last a life time.

I, Myuya Chenevert, leave a gummy bear in room 51, as well as all of the textbooks I've autographed over the years. It's double the replacement cost.

I, Kevin Chevalier, leave Mikey Vecc my pre-game throne, and one more year to Jack, Mario, AJ, and Tim. Do big things.

I, Marco Ciurleo, leave the car to Tali, so she can bring Christa to Friendly's whenever she pleases. I also leave much luck to Joey in his school work.

I, Christopher Colitti, leave the good times I've had at AHS to my little brother Ryan. Good luck Ryan and have fun!

I, Jessica Colson, leave four years to AJ, many more dance parties to AVV, and home plates and "trivia" to AGVSB. I also leave the mound to Lauren; make me proud, sis.

I, Jesse Conklin, leave the copper penny stain in Mr. Phillips' classroom to my brother and a challenge for him to try to remove it.

I, Kristina Cooley, leave all the luck I can give to Tawnie, Cam, and Cyntia, and about ten dollars in quarters which I've dropped over the years to anyone who is willing to find them all.

I, Nicholas Cormier, leave the halls which I walked each day and the school in which many memories were made to Celina, Brady, and Jack. Best of luck as you find your niche here too.

I, Catie Cosby, leave the insanity I gained from being at AHS to an upcoming freshman.

Everyone has memories from their childhood. A person may remember a treasured toy, such as a special doll or shiny red bicycle. However, the strongest memories are those of the special friendships one has made when they were young, and the time these friends spent together.

Our seniors have been making memories together, ever since entering elementary school. Although each member entered one of the elementary schools as a scared child, not knowing anyone, they left the playgrounds and hallways with a class full of friends. They ran around, played various sports in the youth leagues, and celebrated every birthday together.

All four elementary groups came together for the first time in middle school. Joined as one, these youngsters formed the future Class of 2011. As time went on, the bonds got stronger, new friendships were made, and more responsibilities and freedoms were to be had. When they got to junior high, they were the biggest little kids in town.

From dance recitals to soccer tournaments, these seniors have relied on each other since kindergarten. When it comes to fun in the sun or social events, they still seek each other out.

High school can be a trying time for a young teenager. There are more challenging classes to take, and many important decisions to make. These issues can be too much for some students when they finally get to be a freshman after leaving the "small pond" that is the junior high.

The students here at AHS have each other to rely on for help and support. The Class of 2011 has been working together since elementary school to keep each other strong, and that strength only grew as they finally reached their high school years. From trips to the beach with their buddies to trips to Boston with their class, these students have gone many places together. They shop together, talk together, and even party together.

In addition to their strong friendship, they have blazing school spirit. This class really loves their orange and brown, and why wouldn't they? It brought them together to be the people they are. They wear it on their faces in addition to their clothes. They know the meaning of Brownie Pride, and truly respect each other. The Class of 2011 has weathered the storm, through sleet and snow, rain and sun. They have always made it down the road, even when there were a few bumps in the way.

WHAT'S IN YOUR LOCKER?

"My locker is at the end of the cooking hallway. It is gray and never locks, which is awesome. It also has a hook being held up only by gum. I have the best locker in the school."
- Carly Michel '11

Above: Zachary Jendrysik shows off his locker, which he says is too small and always crowded.

Above Left: Breanne Hastings loves her locker, because it is covered in an array of Harry Potter stickers and is probably the most conveniently placed locker in the school.

Left: Jamie Negrucci doesn't like his locker, because its not in a good location. He does likes that the locker doesn't lock, so he doesn't have to waste time putting in a combination.

Describe your locker in detail.

"[It's] always filled to the brim with books that aren't mine!"
- Miranda Polaski '11

"[Mine is] number 1069, orange with scratched off paint. UMass Band Day '90 stickers [are] all over it. Someone wrote 'Olly Molly Folly Golly Gee' in the [rear]."
- Allison Saunders '11

"[It's] 1313! I believe it's lucky. Even though 13 is said to be an unlucky or 'cursed' number, I think since there is two, that it reverses the curse and is lucky."
- Sarah Taylor '11

Everyone has a locker assigned to them when they first enter the school. Some people love their locker, because of where it is located or how it has been decorated by previous owners. Then, there are those students that claim their lockers have a personal vendetta against them. Whatever the case may be, everyone has a story to tell about their experiences with their personal storage locker throughout their four years at Agawam High. No matter the situation, the lockers provide students a place within the school to call their own and to secure their personal belongings.

Left: William Cooperman likes that his locker is in the center of the school, so its easy to get to, making life a lot easier.

Left: Emily Orell likes that her locker is near her classes, so she has no problem getting to it when she needs to.

Below: Jacklyn O'Brien's locker is filled with cobwebs and smelly notebooks, but it has "great potential!"

"I have won too many fights with my locker to keep track of the score. You just have to show them who is boss, when they fight back."
- Antonina Skovorodina '11

YOU CAN'T STEAL OUR THUNDER

While underclassmen may not have the experience the seniors enjoy, they sure are not lacking the energy.

With the knowledge that they are on their way up, underclassmen work hard and strive to succeed.

They'll be seniors soon, and you can't steal their thunder.

JOEL BARLAR

Joel Barlar may seem like just your average adolescent boy, but he is one with big dreams. Wanting to find something that he's passionate about, he discovered a love of music at the age of eight.

Starting with the piano, Joel has been involved in some form of music for about eight years now. At around the age of twelve, he began having an interest in heavy rock music. By the seventh grade, he got his first guitar and has been playing ever since. Although the guitar is his instrument of choice, he has also experimented with the accordion, saxophone, and drums.

Joel is inspired and motivated when jamming with his friends. During his freshman year, Joel participated in the Jazz Band. However, he stopped performing with the group in order to pursue his own music and grow with the band he is in now. He has hopes of making it big with his band, and has been focusing most of his attention on that.

Outside of school, Joel enjoys playing video games, especially his favorite, World of Warcraft. However, Joel maintains his grades. His favorite teacher is Mr. Fontaine, due to his sarcastic, witty humor. Joel also hopes to go to college, although he is unsure of exactly what he wants to study. He cannot wait to go off and pursue his dreams.

MAURA
CURRAN

When you strike up a conversation with Maura Curran, you will automatically know that you are in for a good chat. She is well-versed in politics and is a very well-rounded individual. She is an impressive person to converse with, even though she does not think that she is very interesting. She is smart and witty, creating her own path to success.

A busy person, with an extremely challenging course load, Maura participates in several activities, including Model Congress. Having strong democratic ideals about politics, she has been a key member of the team when debating. Her views and opinions are quite apparent, for when asked which person she would like to have lunch with, she quickly replied "Teddy Kennedy," because she admires his many accomplishments and would like to know more about him.

In addition to Model Congress, she is also a member of the prom committee, donating much of her vacation time to spouting ideas, and constructing props to make her junior prom as awesome as it can be. Maura also keeps herself busy by working at Quail Run, a retirement home in Agawam.

Maura would love to go to New York University, but she doesn't know what she wants to study just yet. She also expresses a great love for the city, and a passion for "getting out of this boring town."

GARRITT
DILUZIO

Garritt DiLuzio looks back fondly at the time he spends here at Agawam High, particularly remembering Mrs. Fleury's class. During his sophomore year, he took Biology Honors, and it was his favorite class, because Mrs. Fleury is a just a "cool teacher." Garritt plans on pursuing a science-related field in the future, but he's not exactly sure what. His ideal school is Boston University, but may end up at a state school, due to the John and Abigail Adams Scholarship he received by earning "advanced standing" on his MCAS exams. Garritt's future is truly looking bright.

Garritt got a part-time job at an apartment complex this past summer. He was a janitor, having to clean up all sorts of messes. He recalled one time when the septic system wasn't working properly, and he was the guy called in to clean it up. It was a not a pretty sight. He worked long hours for minimum wage, but he didn't mind. He says he plans on returning next summer, because it was "easy money," despite the occasional unpleasantness.

When he's not working or at school, Garritt likes to hang out with his friends and just mess around. He says the word most often used to describe him is "tall," but he doesn't mind; he thinks it's cool. If he could have any super power, it would be x-ray vision to see through everything. Garritt claims that's he's "not very interesting," but his friends beg to differ.

JESSICA
CORRIVEAU

At first glance, she is an average teenage girl, but there's more than meets the eye when it comes to Jessica Corriveau. She is currently a sophomore, and she enjoys her time at the high school. Her favorite subjects are English, French, and science, because she finds them all fascinating. She also loves using "clicker" pens in class, but by the end of the day, her pens seem to vanish mysteriously.

If she could change one thing about school, she would add a hallway from the math department across the courtyard. She believes it would minimize hallway traffic, making it easier for students to get to class on time.

When she's not busy with her academic course load, she loves to challenge her friends to a Magic the Gathering card battle. In her spare time, she enjoys playing piano, which she also teaches. In addition, she'll try to sneak a couple of episodes of her favorite shows, Law and Order: Special Victims Unit and Bones, into her day. Their complex mysteries always entertain her mind.

Jessica is also interested in the paranormal, and believes a ghost lives with her. One night, the fire alarm at her house went off several times. Thinking it was malfunctioning, she and her mom finally replaced the alarm. However, a couple night later, it rang again. She could only think that the spirit of her deceased father was in the house, protecting them from danger.

NICHOLAS
BRUNO

Nick Bruno is a sophomore here at AHS. At a glance, he may seem like an ordinary teen whose favorite food is apple cinnamon toaster strudels and who gets annoyed with his siblings every now and again. What sets him apart from other students, however, is his passion for skateboarding and videography.

Nick began to skateboard several years ago, and has loved the challenge of the sport ever since. There are always new or tougher tricks to try and it never gets boring, especially when he skates with his friend from Southampton. They enjoy hanging out and goofing off. With his skateboard in hand, Nick likes to take the bus into urban environments, and explores the unfamiliar areas. He says he likes it because, he "gets to experience life unlike anyone else from Agawam!" When not outside enjoying the nice weather, Nick is in school enjoying his favorite class, Career Exploration, with Mrs. Hauser. He enjoys this class, because it has helped him discover what he wants to do with his future; taking and editing videos. He believes that a related occupation, like a videographer for WWLP, would make an amazing career. Nick also likes that he would still be able to observe new people and explore new places, just in a different way. He can then share what he learns through these experiences with others.

DANIELLA
BESSARABOVA

Daniella Bessarabova is an extremely active sophomore here at Agawam High School. She is an active member of the Key Club, Future Medical Career Club, S.A.V.E., and Peer Leadership. Daniella's sport of choice is swimming. She is a member of both the high school swim team as well as the Pirhanas, the town team. Being so involved does not leave her a lot of spare time.

A great student, Daniella's favorite teacher at AHS is the new English teacher, Mr. Rood. When asked why he was her favorite she replied enthusiastically, "Because he's awesome!" Her favorite teacher may be an English teacher, but her favorite subject happens to be History. She takes her education seriously, and strives to do her best.

Daniella is very interesting, and has a good sense of humor. This was apparent during her interview. For example, Daniella says her special talent is to go one day with only three hours of sleep. If everyone in the world randomly turned into vegetables, Daniella says that she would turn into a cucumber, for as the famous saying goes, you are what you eat. She also said that her favorite holiday is Memorial Day, because it extends her birthday weekend.

Daniella Bessarabova leads a busy and fulfilling life. It seems only fitting that she wants to be a cultural anthropologist and study the lives of others in the future.

KEVIN

Kevin Urban, a junior, is usually a man of few words. Not the vocal type, when he speaks, most would agree that he always has something interesting to say.

One of the passions that drives Kevin is art. Kevin is active in the Visual Arts Department. His work is seen during the arts festivals held throughout the year and in the hallways every day. His artistic works are the result of a variety of techniques in which Kevin has been trained and shows skill.

Kevin demonstrates his artistry in another way, though. An avid amateur photographer, he can often be seen on the sidelines of the track at Smith College, or in the stands of the football field in the spring, always snapping shots of his friends in action. His action photos are regarded as great memoirs of the meets. Many of his friends appreciate his hard work and drive to produce great-quality action shots.

Speaking of action shots, Kevin also runs during all three seasons. A member of the indoor and outdoor track and field teams, as well as the cross country team in the fall. Kevin usually runs longer distances in track, like the mile or the two-mile run. It's fine for him to compete, though, for during these races, someone else mans the camera and captures Kevin's races.

Despite all his activities, Kevin still manages to maintain a balanced life which includes both school and family. Things are looking quite good for Kevin, and he's excited about returning next year as an upperclassman.

Right: Rachel Mazza has fun while using a microscope in science class.

Left: Mrs. Fleury and her students, Thomas Ennis, William Fairlie, and Moises Soriaga, stop to laugh about one of the topics for a project they were researching in the library's databases.

Right: Dabney Rauh and Kristen Fraska enjoying having lunch together. It gives them time to catch up with homework and each other.

Krista Borsari arranges her slide under the microscope so she can get a clearer look at her assignment, a laboratory investigation on cell division.

Olivia Isom enjoys having hands-on activities in her science classes, because she knows that it helps her and her classmates learn. Many of the classes offered use kinesthetic learning, which allows students to learn by doing.

Above: Kamelle Robinson strides through the hallways, knowing that, as a sophomore, in just two short years, he and his classmates will rule the school.

"The year was too long, and the summer was too short."

Right: Jordan Venne and Patrick Oleksak cheer on their team from the sidelines.

Below: After the Indoor Track Western Mass. Championship meet, all of the sophomore runners, Kevin Urban, Benjamin Parzich, Alexandra Jeannotte, Ashley Monahan, Amy Grindle, Kelly Bronson, Taylor Lunden, Michael Andre, Kamelle Robinson, and Jonathan Alicea, get together for a group shot as a reminder of all the amazing friendships they have made.

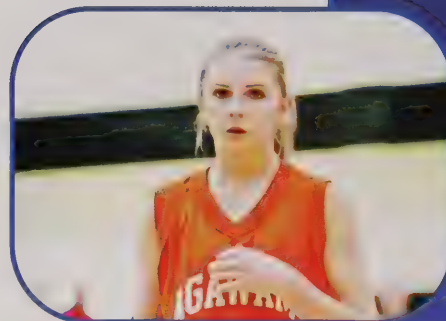

Page Phillips attentively takes down important information during her class, because she knows that when it comes to her test next week, the best way for her to study is to review her notes.

Timothy Fournier and Andrew Gruska walk the hall on their way to the Counseling Department. Throughout the year, the counselors meet with each student individually to ensure they are staying on the right track for graduation.

Left: Alycia Rackliffe goes up for a kill during a charity volleyball game against rival West Springfield. This game was a fundraiser for breast cancer awareness.

Right: Riley Hellstein always works hard during her basketball games, but especially in practice. She knows that preparing mentally and physically during practice will help the team.

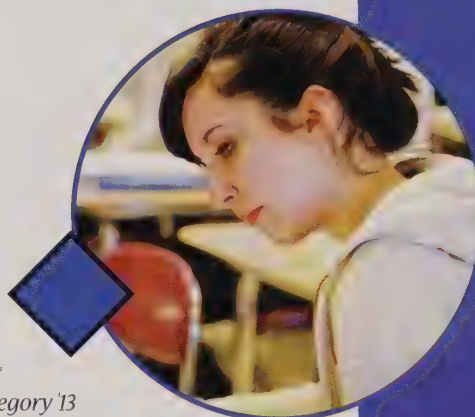

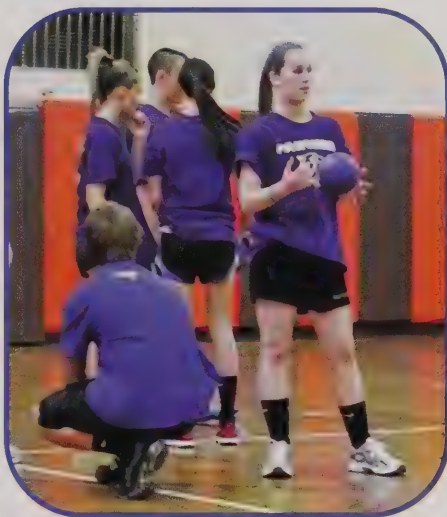

Amanda St. Laurent waves while making her way to class. Passing is an important part of the day at the high school, because getting across the school in only four minutes is an acquired skill.

"I'm looking forward to next year and being an upperclassman."
- Alexa Smith '13

"You learn who your real friends are [during sophomore year], and that you can't take them for granted."

SYDNEY
CASSELL

Sydney Cassell is quite a busy freshman. In the fall, she is a majorette in the school's color guard, as part of the marching Mohawks, and also plays on the volleyball team to stay in shape. Throughout the year, she takes part in the school's robotics team, and also takes dance lessons outside of school. In the spring, she plays tennis and twirls baton. When Sydney gets the chance, she really enjoys the opportunity to go home after school and watch television, even though some nights that indulgence gets interrupted by homework.

When she got to the high school, Sydney realized that it was really a lot easier than she thought it would be. She didn't get lost, and she has no difficulty with her classes. She likes being in the school, because there is more freedom to be had and more choices that she can make for herself. Geometry Honors with Mr. Benkert is her favorite class, because she likes that they do fun things while learning at the same time. But just like every freshman, and every other student at AHS, she is looking forward to great times with her friends, having different teachers, going on cool class trips, and of course, graduating.

After high school, Sydney doesn't know what it is that she wants to study when she goes to college, but she does know that she plans on continuing being a majorette in the marching band of whatever school she chooses to attend.

FREDRICK GRAVEL

Fredrick Gravel is a freshman, and could not be more excited to start his high school career. He says that the high school is so much larger than the junior high, and there are so many different places to go. His favorite class so far is Algebra with Mr. Hollister, who is his favorite teacher, because he is really funny and is never mean to the class. Fredrick hopes to have him as a teacher again before he graduates.

When Fredrick is not studying for a big test or working hard in school, he enjoys hanging out with his friends. They can often be seen riding their bikes around town and stopping at many of the local convenience stores. He also said that his favorite fast food restaurant is McDonald's, not because of the quality of the food, but because that is where everyone in town always hangs out. He is almost certain to meet someone he knows.

If Fredrick were to win a million dollars, he said "he would spend it with his friends, and have a good week." He feels that life is too short to try and save that large amount of money and that he would want to spend it right away. As for his favorite holiday, it is his birthday, because he gets to go to a party where everyone is there just for him. He also likes the fact that he gets another year older, which comes with more privileges. He knows that with age there comes responsibility, and he can not wait to see where his life will lead him after high school.

David North, a freshman this year, is not only a positive figure in school, but in sports as well. David may seem like the average boy, but there's much more to him than meets the eye. He is a very social, outgoing, and well-rounded person.

When it comes to baseball and football trivia, David can tell you everything you would ever want to know. He has been involved in both sports, since he was very young, and even played basketball before entering high school. As a defensive end and a catcher, he has to understand every aspect of both games to perform well. His friends and family have had a huge impact on the sports he plays, but when asked who his role model was, he decided that it was a compilation of those around him, including family and friends.

As an athlete, David knows that his academics are a priority, and he is glad to finally be at the high school. He is a hard-working student whose favorite subject is history. However, his favorite teacher is Miss Davis. Compared to the junior high, David said that he "[likes] the high school a lot more. The teachers are nicer, the classes are better, and you have more freedom."

Although sports are his favorite thing to do, he also enjoys spending down time with his friends. David uses his new found freedom to listen to music, and can be seen with his teammates relaxing and eating his favorite foods; pizza and mozzarella sticks.

WHITE

Ian White is happy to be a freshman at AHS. He loves being here compared to the junior high, for it has a much more relaxed atmosphere. It is also easier to talk to his friends between classes. However, he is frustrated that some students fight, and he believes people should try to be nicer to each other.

Ian says that World History II is his favorite class, because he excels when it comes to memorizing the facts and dates.

Always open to trying something new, this year Ian decided to take Design Bay in the school's technical education department. He loves the class, because he "gets to use a lot of tools" that he would otherwise never have access to, like the plasma cutter.

After school, Ian spends his time catching up with homework, reading science fiction novels, playing on his computer, and going to robotics meetings, where he has made numerous friends. Ian wants the world to know just how awesome of an experience he has had on the robotics team. He believes that anyone who appreciates team work would enjoy being a part of Rosie Robotics.

Ian enjoys playing video games and wants to go to college to study video game design. He can then work for a large company designing games that he himself would like to play. However, his dream job would be a video game tester, not designer, because "it would be more fun."

Right: Casey Keeley and Erik Kierkla assist each other to get their assignment done in a timely fashion.

Sarah Stephens stops by her locker to grab her stuff at the end of the day. One of the hardest aspects of high school is keeping yourself organized. Sarah finds this task can be made much easier by using the school agenda to write down her daily assignments.

Below: Christopher Rumprik, Christopher Reagan, and Caitlin McCarthy await Mr. Hueglin's cue to begin their next song. For the first time this year, there is a class specifically for all of the freshmen interested in playing in the high school band.

Tyler Carpenter's homemade Halloween costume took hours to make. Luckily, it arrived at the school in one piece, so he could show it off to his classmates.

RETIRING FACULTY

MRS. BERNADETTE CONTE

Mrs. Conte was always the first person to tell students that everything would be fine, and that they would love high school. She was also the first person to advise students to make sure they got all their work done and to always do the right thing, or else they would be in trouble very quickly, usually with her.

With a kind smile and a firm hand, Mrs. Conte always knew what to say to each student, regardless of who they were or what they did. Today, it is sad to think that the current freshmen and future students of AHS will not know Mrs. Conte, someone we were all lucky to have touch our lives.

Having to make the difficult decision to retire over Summer 2010 due to health issues, the news came as a surprise to many upon the start of this school year. She will be sadly missed by all those students and faculty she guided.

MRS. ANN-MARIE GOULD

Mrs. Gould, the counselor assigned to the freshman class for several years, announced her retirement late last spring. Her duties were possibly some of the most difficult in the school; having to deal with the incoming classes each year and preparing them for their future high school careers. In addition, she served as the Advanced Placement coordinator, where she oversaw the registration and administration of exams required by The College Board.

Always organized and ready to give advice, Mrs Gould was available to lend a helping hand to students in need. Whether it was choosing courses to fill their schedules or handling a personal problem, she made herself accessible to the students of Agawam High. Her constant work in assessing both the needs of freshmen and students in AP classes always kept her busy.

Mrs. Gould will be missed by students and colleagues.

MRS. PATRICIA BERTONE-GROSS

Having taught mathematics at Agawam High since 1987, Mrs. Bertone-Gross started her career in Agawam teaching night school classes. She also taught in two other school systems for nine years prior to arriving in town. Her years of experience and her joyful smile made mathematics fun for many of her students. She will also be remembered for her concern over the well-being of the planet, and her never-ending reminders to reduce, reuse, and recycle here at AHS.

In her free time, Mrs. Bertone-Gross enjoys hiking and is looking forward to having more time to do just this when she retires. Regularly, she can be seen walking up and down Main Street in the afternoon. She also enjoys basket weaving and visiting art galleries and museums, especially when math is somehow involved.

Mrs. Bertone-Gross and her husband are currently planning to move to North Carolina following her retirement. The math department will miss her deeply.

A SPRINKLE OF KNOWLEDGE

The teachers at Agawam High give the students the knowledge
they need to prosper, just like the rain gives plants a chance to grow.

The experiences they give their students are as significant as water is to the circle of life.
Without knowledge, we have nothing.

A Teacher for All Seasons

A teacher is like Spring,
Who nurtures new green sprouts,
Encourages and leads them,
Whenever they have doubts.

A teacher is like Summer,
Whose sunny temperament
Makes studying a pleasure,
Preventing discontent.

A teacher is like Fall,
With methods crisp and clear,
Lessons of bright colors
And a happy atmosphere.

A teacher is like Winter,
While it's snowing hard outside,
Keeping students comfortable,
As a warm and helpful guide.
Teacher, you do all these things,
With a pleasant attitude;
You're a teacher for all seasons,
And you have my gratitude!

LUNCH

"The cookies with M&M's that they serve are delicious."
- Marissa Morassi '11

Left: In order to get students through the lunch line more quickly, the school implemented a schedule with four overlapping lunches.

Left: Rebecca Fondakowski demonstrates how to use the brand new debit system at lunch, which uses student ID cards.

Describe your lunch experience.

"[My favorite part of school lunch is] not having to think for 20 minutes in the middle of the day."
- Cynthia Macaulay '11

"[My least favorite part of school lunch is] forgetting my spork, and having to go back to get it." - Christian Reed '11

"My favorite lunch food is the pizza!" - Elyse Cote '14

In the past few years, lunch has changed in many ways at AHS. Not only have different offerings come and gone, but the way lunch is purchased has become a new process entirely. At one time, hungry students walked up to the counter, grabbed a lunch, and paid their $2 in cash. Now, they can use their ID's instead, which parents can replenish with funds simply by going on-line. Although slow and confusing at first, the system has become a time saver in those long lunch lines. In addition, the new school schedule allows for four staggered lunches, which helps cut down the time one waits in line.

Below: Brian Benson enjoys the smell of the delicious cookies baked each day by the cafeteria staff.

"If there was one thing I learned in high school, it was the buttered noodle lunch schedule."
- Hannah Pender '11

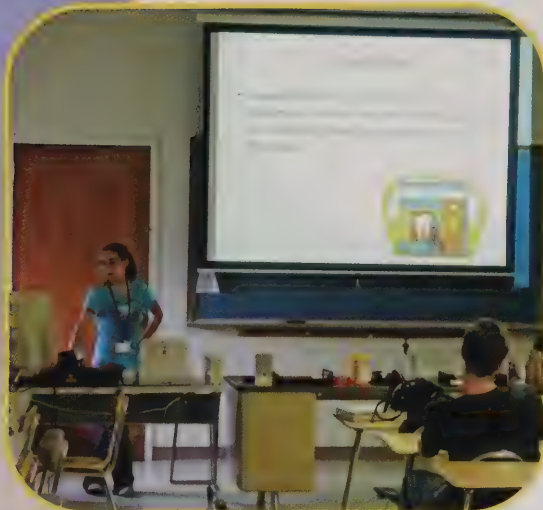

EVERYTHING UNDER THE SUN

Agawam High School offers a huge variety of classes and electives. This range of opportunities exposes students to a great mix of experiences.

Students can take courses in just about everything under the sun, brightening their future prospects.

ACADEMICS

Nicole Despang gives a presentation about the career she would like to pursue in the future. The BITC department allows students with an early idea of a possible career to participate in internships to explore their choice further.

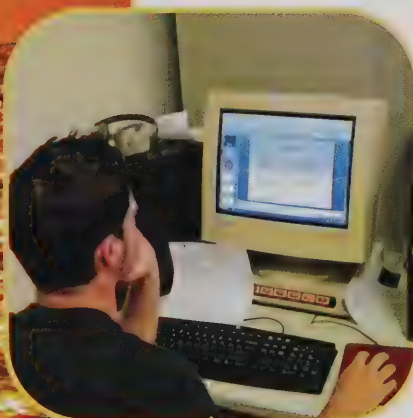

Business, these days, goes far beyond accounting or sitting in a cubicle. A solid background in business is encouraged for any profession. The Agawam High School's Business, Instructional Technology and Career Department helps to prepare its students for whatever future career they plan to pursue, as well as life skills.

In fact, it seems that more and more people are training in business in order to get ahead. Someone who is more proficient in finances, computer technology, or has a general knowledge of the business world will be seen as more competent than someone who is not. With the advent of computers in nearly every workplace, the instructional technology department's role is more significant than ever. If people are not familiar with software applications, they may not be ready to take on a number of challenges in the current job market. Agawam High School is lucky enough to offer a variety of these very practical courses.

Whether it's Personal Finance or Career Exploration, business and instructional technology is an important part of daily life in the twenty-first century.

Cody Fitzsimmons works on a project for his Virtual High School class. VHS classes are very popular for students who would like to take classes not offered at AHS, or for those classes which do not fit into their schedules.

"Mrs. Hauser is always enthusiastic and excited to teach the class, even during seventh period."
- Jillian Newton '12

Alissa Packer looks up information about different colleges for her Career Exploration class, which allows students to think about their futures and gather information about colleges and possible careers as early as freshman year.

"I'm really glad I took [Career Exploration]. It's helping me to prepare for my future."
- Alexis Andrews '13

COUNSELING CENTER

Being a high school student brings forth many questions: What classes should I take? What classes do I need to take? What will look good on my transcript? What is a transcript? What colleges should I apply to? What is college? The list goes on and on. When questions like these arise, there is no need to worry. The guidance counselors in our counseling center are there to help.

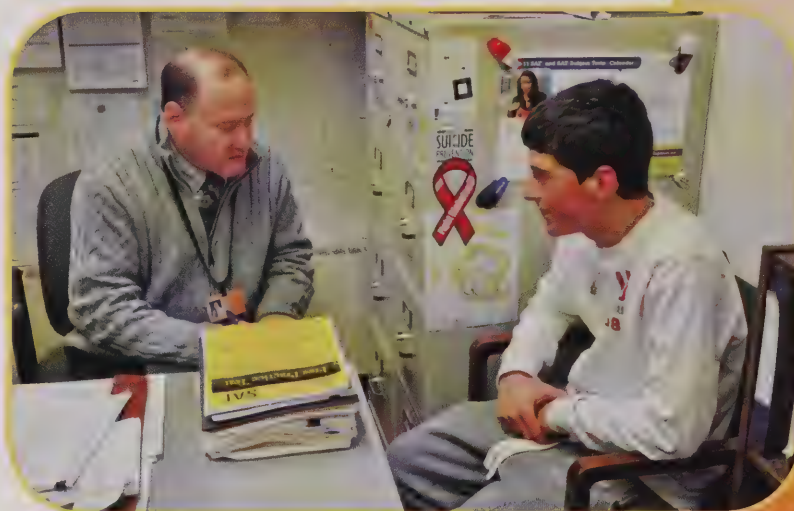

With Ms. Galereave and Mrs. Schoenberger working together on the AP Program and its related grant, more students than ever are challenging themselves with taking these difficult courses. For those who are not ready for that rigorous work load, the school also offers honors and college-preparatory level classes as well.

The counselors, such as Mr. Cohen, Mr. Figy, Mr. Meagher, and Mrs. LaPoint keep themselves very busy working with students to help them with not only academic situations, but on a personal level as well. They help the students to solve conflicts and to make important decisions that will affect their future.

The students are not the only ones that appreciate the guidance counselors at AHS, for they have won regional awards as well.

Right: Mr. Cohen and Lucas Giusto converse about how he will spend his junior year in order to build his college transcript. They also discuss the upcoming SATs and how Lucas should prepare.

William Cotrone and Cian O'Sullivan fill out information that will be reviewed by the counseling center to help make decisions concerning their future in high school.

"The guidance counselors do a great job at helping their students prepare for college. They are available at any time of the day as well. I feel comfortable going to my counselor for anything that I may need help with."
- Gaetano Scuderi '12

Yevgenia Abramov and Tyler Girard have been summoned to the counseling offices with the well-known guidance pass. Interns distribute these passes daily to maintain a good connection between the counselors and the students, having meetings whenever either party feels it is necessary.

"Mr. Cohen is my favorite guidance counselor, ever, because he's awesome! He gave me Pasternak for math last year."
- Breanne Hastings '11

Megan Alaimo and Kaitlin Dunley receive important advice and guidance from their counselor, Mrs. LaPoint. While in the library, they focus on the PSAT, and how it can help them prepare for the actual SAT test.

Kylie Clark, Emily Hartmann, and Gabriella Spear listen to a summer work presentation from a fellow student.

The English Department works hard to provide diverse courses and interesting electives, in addition to the mandatory classes in English language and literature. The English teachers try and succeed year after year to make their classes as fun as possible. They provide a basis of knowledge in reading and writing, upon which students can build the remainder of their education. They teach students to communicate their ideas effectively in an intelligent and comprehensible way.

The department offers a wide range of course levels, including Advanced Placement classes for juniors and seniors, and an honors option for students in any grade. With these readily available choices, students don't think twice about challenging themselves with an advanced course work; they know their teachers will work diligently to ensure their academic success.

Dedicated to assisting the students in all aspects of high school life, the English faculty are very active in the school's extra-curricular activities, including academic and literacy clubs, sports, and honors societies. In addition, some serve on various district-wide subcommittees.

Left: Gina Lopez and Taylor Lunden concentrate while absorbing information on authors from various time periods, such as Shakespeare.

Michael Gonet follows along in his English book while Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet is acted out in class.

"I love reading!"
- Dayra Morais '13

In Mrs. Hawkins first period, English 9 Honors class, the students put their desks together to work on a group project. This allows them to discuss and share ideas.

"My favorite book we've read so far was Catcher In The Rye and my favorite ... memory so far is probably when my class acted out Romeo and Juliet my freshman year."
- Brandon Pellerin '12

Have you ever listened to a class singing, heard maracas shaking, or smelled crêpes cooking? If so, you have probably found yourself in the foreign language hallway. The current languages offered by the department are French, Spanish, and Italian, all with personable teachers ready to fill students' minds with new words and phrases. With all levels of classes offered, including college prep, honors, and AP, students are always able to further their learning of a language.

Not only do students learn a new language, but they are also exposed to the cultures of the countries where it is spoken. For the Spanish and French classes, students are even able to travel to the junior high school to present mini-lessons for the students there. Students who excel in these languages during their sophomore year have the opportunity to join the French or Spanish National Honor Societies. For the young scholars who choose to take Italian, they have the opportunity to learn songs in their language each Friday.

No matter what the language may be, students look forward to their foreign language classes every day.

Allison Charette and Alyssa Piotrowski love to be partners during presentations in their Spanish class. They say that it's the easiest way to get a good grade, because they have fun and learn at the same time.

"¡Me gusta el Español!"
- Jonathan Fontaine '13

Katelyn Cummings and Alexander Yusenko act out a "role play" exercise as a part of a unit test in their Spanish III class.

"[French] is the best language ever and [I think] more people should try to learn it."
- Ryan Evelyn '11

FOREIGN LANGUAGE

Gino Serra makes a presentation in his Issues in Health class about the dangers of substance abuse.

Everyone needs to learn how to cook and take care of themselves. That is where the Health and Family Consumer Science Department comes into play. A mandatory class for all students, Issues in Health educates students on the most current topics in the world of health. It also prepares students for certification in CPR, a useful skill for any individual.

Students can also learn to prepare foods in various cooking classes. They can discover recipes for classic dishes as well as modern, healthy alternatives that they can prepare for the rest of their lives.

One of the most memorable classes in this department is Child Development, where students learn valuable lessons about life and families by caring for robotic babies.

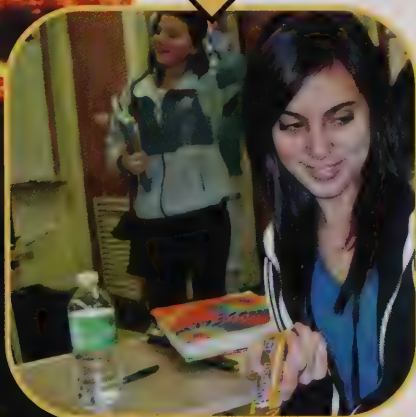

The teachers in this department hope to motivate their students to eat healthily, live happily, and remain informed on all the recent developments related to healthy living. It is the belief of the department that if their students are aware of the issues and dangers of the world today, then they can better protect themselves tomorrow.

LIBRARY AND MEDIA CENTER

What's better than a nice, quiet place to do research or find a book to read and enjoy? Nothing. That's why our library and media center is so great. It is open every school day, as well as after school Monday through Thursday, to students and staff.

Many students love the school's library for its extensive collection of books, not only for research, but also for recreational reading. The library also subscribes to a wide variety of databases for research. With a full-time library media specialist and secretary, students always have someone available to assist them with the many services the center offers. This research center is an excellent place to write any assignment.

In addition, the library is a place where people can view the artistic talents of students. The walls of the library display some of the art projects produced by the visual arts program. The library also boasts a computer lab, laptop carts, and media center, which provide nearly unlimited resources for research and projects. The back computer lab is home to the school's Novanet and Virtual High School programs, which allow students to earn credits in an alternative classroom setting.

Jared D'Antonio is sure to collect as much information as he can for his research paper while in the library.

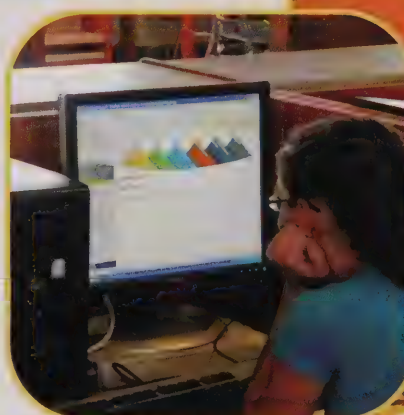

Right: Nicolas Pugliano and Natalia Ciurleo work together on a paper during a class period in the library. They used their brains, as well as the resources around them, to answer any of the questions they might have had.

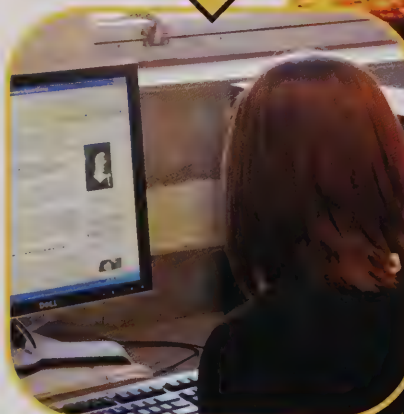

"[The library] is a cool place to relax and get work done. It has many useful sources to help me find any information I need."
- Kelly Grindle '11

Nicole Despang uses a school promoted website to help her make a graph for a business class.

"I like to sit on the rocking chairs and converse with my friends. I like the fish tank too; it's a nice touch."
- Brandon D'Amours '12

The Mathematics Department works hard all year round to teach students the basic skills they need for life in the "real world." In addition, they teach more abstract concepts to develop high-order thinking skills in preparation for their students to succeed in college. The teachers in this department strive to ensure student success on standardized tests such as MCAS and the SAT, as well as the Advanced Placement math exams, for which students can earn college credits.

Offering a wide variety of levels of math, ranging from Algebra I through Advanced Placement Calculus BC, the department tries to meet the academic needs of all students. Instructors try to build on the previously acquired skills of the students to move them forward. By teaching students to understand basic concepts and ideas, such as the properties of equality and the Pythagorean Theorem, they hope to show that mathematics does have many practical applications, and is a key component in the technological future that the students will soon be part of. Never should a student from Agawam ask the question, "When will we ever use this?" They already know the answer.

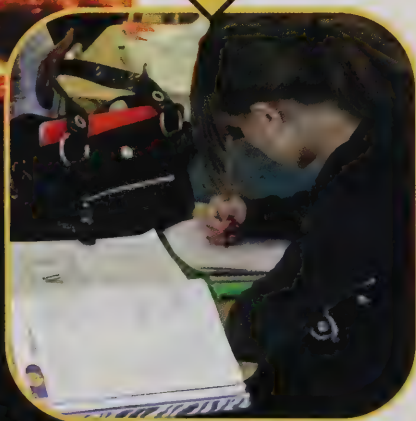

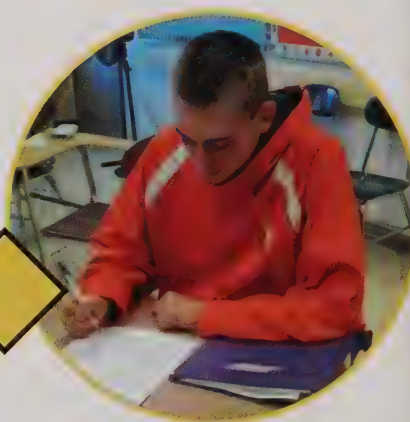

Left: Anthony Vecchiarelli and Anthony Lucci work together to plot trends for a statistics assignment using their TI-84 graphing calculators.

Maura Curran and Anthony Hollywood work on sample calculus exam questions during one of the Saturday review sessions for Advanced Placement classes.

"The AP program is excellent, and it opens students minds to new horizons in the realm of mathematics, including calculus and statistics. The instructors comport themselves in a well-educated manner and are zealous about their job."

- Jeffrey Rovatti '12

Samantha Platt starts her math homework during some free time in class so she is able to ask her teacher questions.

"Mr. Hollister's math class is so much fun! He has a great personality and really helps us have fun while learning math."

- Leisl Bard '12

Everyone needs physical activity to stay healthy. This is a fact that the Physical Education Department knows very well. Here, the teachers design games, activities, lessons, and tournaments to keep their students physically fit. They also make it their mission to impress upon the students how important it is to stay active throughout their life, not just while in high school. Students in Physical Education learn the backgrounds and rules of the various games that they play, especially the local favorites of basketball, floor hockey, and volleyball.

The department hosts two school-wide floor hockey and volleyball tournaments per year. Teams begin by competing within their classes, and the best teams compete against those from other periods. These tournaments are the talk of the school for weeks, and the winning teams have bragging rights for the rest of the semester.

When it's not tournament time, students play classic games and sports. They also have the opportunity to try Pilates, yoga, and weight lifting as well as a wide range of cardiovascular endurance and exercise machines in the back gym.

Right: Anthony Nitri performs a warm-up routine, which consist of crunches, jumping jacks, and push-ups, to make sure the body is fully ready for the intense physical activity to come.

Students get their hearts pumping by working out on the many cardiovascular machines made available to them.

"Gym is my favorite class. It's the only class you can have a lot of fun in."
- Brandon Sawyer '13

"Gym class is really fun, and my favorite activity is ping pong."
- Jesse Conklin '11

Andrew Smith plans his attack against the juniors in an exciting game of Prison Ball.

Aleksandar Gnjjidic shoots some hoops, laying in a shot flawlessly and following through with the rebound as well.

During Horticulture, Amanda Messick and Bria Dooley sort through the seed packets in order to decide what to plant.

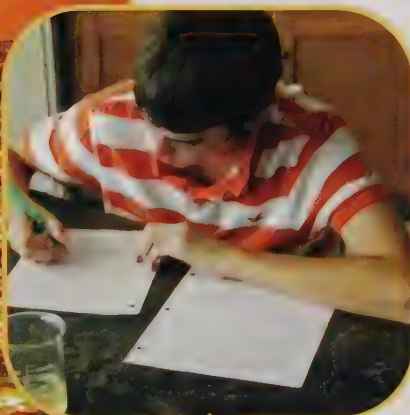

From Biology to Chemistry, Physics to Horticulture, there are classes for everyone, even those that may not like science. Science is always changing, and the classes offered reflect that in the curriculum. From new organisms that feed on arsenic to the emergence of string theory in physics, science has to transform with the new data and information that is acquired.

Not only does the school offer a wide variety of science courses, it also takes them to a new level. The double period lab classes are now offered for non-honor level courses. Everyone has the opportunity to be involved in a hands-on experience in our science classrooms.

Genetics, Microbiology, Science Ethics, and Environmental Science are just a few of the science-related elective courses available for those students who might want to learn something outside of the realm of the regular, required course work. These science courses not only provide students a basic understanding of the subject to take with them upon graduation, but the foundation and experience needed to succeed in pursuing higher education related to this discipline.

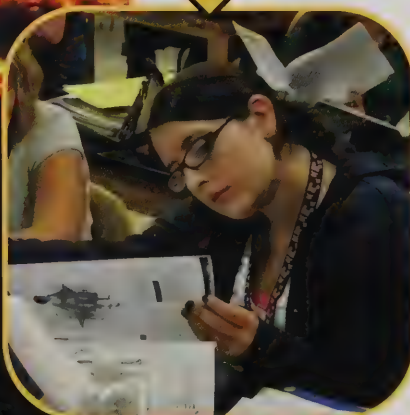

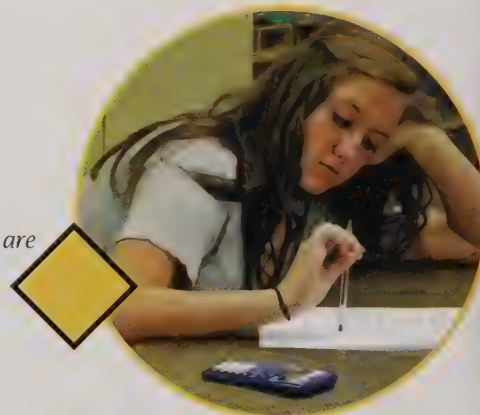

Left: Mrs. Bobskill enjoys getting students like Allison Saunders involved by putting them into a hands-on setting. It gets the students more interested and more excited about the class.

Timothy Matroni writes down data during a laboratory experiment in his science class. Experiments have always been a favorite part of the curriculum, because all students love a hands-on work experience, where they are allowed to discover more information than they would just taking notes.

"A lot of my friends are in my class, so it makes it fun."
- Elise Roy '14

Ebru Dogan looks back in her notes to help her finish a class assignment. Worksheets and study guides, such as these, allow her to process information and apply what she has learned in class.

"[Horticulture] is a fun class, where you can go outside. It's a break from all the school work."
- Marco Ciurleo '11

Along with the mandatory classes of United States History I and II, as well as World History, there are also many electives offered in the Social Studies Department. Students can take courses such as World Religion, European History, Practical Law, Psychology, and Sociology. The faculty knows that it's important to comprehend what is going on in the world around us, in order to understand the people and situations that we encounter in our everyday lives.

Here, the students learn real-world problem solving skills, and how to foresee their consequences by studying the past effects of similar situations. They ensure a better tomorrow by being educated in matters of the past by participating in these classes.

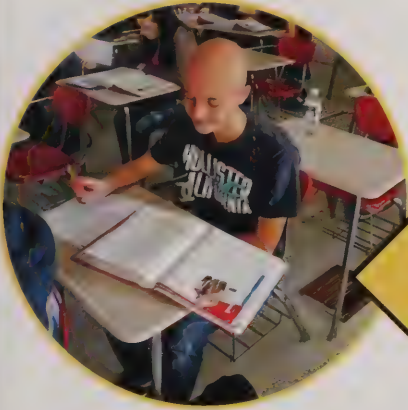

History is brought to life to demonstrate to students that learning about the past is not all about memorizing dates and facts. The topics they study in class have a direct effect on the world in which they live, and their daily interactions. Students learn these important lessons, along with those dates and facts they need to know, to have a well-rounded education, so history doesn't necessarily have to repeat itself.

Students can't help but smile when it comes to history class. With many different teacher personalities, there is no doubt that social studies is one of the favorite areas of study.

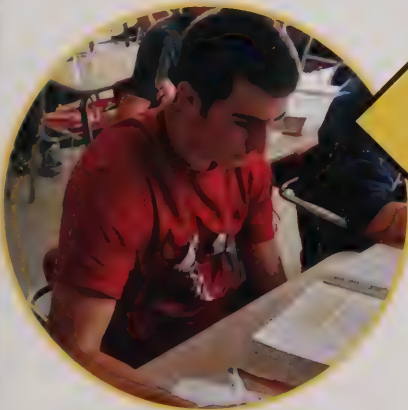

Right: Mr. Jennings tries his hardest to bring humor to the classroom while he teaches history. This way, students pay attention to important lessons.

- Ruslan Paskonov '13

Matthew Settembro listens to the teacher review material during his history class, helping him to prepare for an upcoming test.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION

Christopher Jamgochian joins his first piece of lumber after passing his safety certification test.

The Technology Education Department focuses on giving the students in their classes the knowledge and experience necessary for success in the workplace of a technology-based career. They also provide an opportunity for students to start hobbies, whether it be working with wood or electronics, learning about graphic arts, or fixing up an old car.

Students are encouraged to improve their own work ethic and skills while developing and completing hands-on projects. Such projects have included repairing a piece of the school roof, building small motors, and wiring circuits, designing parts, learning photography, building a shed for Mr. Lemanski, as well as repairing their own vehicles. The department is also home to Rosie Robotics and the Photography Club.

Year after year, the Technology Education Department strives to bring their students the most modern and advanced curriculum and information available. With these resources, students labor to construct the best products that they possibly can.

VISUAL AND PERFORMING ARTS

The Visual and Performing Arts Department is the home of creativity at the school. It hosts the artistic forms of instrumental music, vocal performance, dance, sculpture, painting, drawing, and graphic arts. Host to some favorite events and shows, such as the Winter Arts Festival, Agawam Spotlight, and the biannual school musical, the department gives students the opportunity to showcase their talents.

The faculty helps their students reach their potential, and instructs them on how to refine the skills they have acquired as well as the talent they already possess. These young performers and artisans are highly talented, and can only benefit from an educator's careful instruction in their designated specialty.

These creative teachers are also responsible for a multitude of activities such as Symphonic Band, Marching Band, Jazz Band, Freshmen Band, Percussion Ensemble, Honors Chorus, Chorale, Art Club, and the Art National Honors Society. Spending countless hours both after school and on weekends, the time spent perfecting their students' talents really shows.

Most people only think about the balance between school and sports, but what about all those students who also work? As a junior or senior, students find the need to start saving money for college and those everyday expenses. Most students who have jobs don't just work on the weekends. Most work various hours on school nights, and then go home to finish their homework and study for tests. This only leaves a few precious hours to sleep, so they are rested for the next day. Anyone who can balance work with school should be commended for their effort and responsibility.

The Art National Honor Society showcases some of our school's most talented artists. This honor society differs from the other societies, as its members must take a specific course as part of their schedules. In addition to taking this class during the school day, students also dedicate time after school to create art for display at the extremely popular Winter and Spring Arts Festivals, as well as throughout the school in display cases. All of this is done to help build their art portfolios for college.

The displays created by the members of the Art National Honors Society show just how talented the art students are, and they have become a very important aspect of the aesthetics and culture of AHS. Their work helps to develop an overall appreciation for the various methods and techniques used to create visual masterpieces.

By maintaining a strong average in their foreign language classes for two years, Agawam's cultural aficionados are eligible to enter the honor society that corresponds with their language of study, either French or Spanish. Proof of their past success, the members bear a responsibility to maintain their academic standing.

The purpose of the society is to recognize the high achievement of high school students in the French and Spanish languages and to promote a continuing interest in these studies. The society's most prestigious event is their induction ceremony. The rituals of induction include the lighting of candles, the reciting of an oath, and a registry in which new members enter their name. The evening provides a unique way of recognizing these students, since the entire presentation is done in the language of that society.

The National Honor Society consists of some of the brightest students and represents our school in the community through their involvement in service projects. Each spring, juniors are inducted in a very prestigious ceremony. To become a member of the society, a student must conform to the four "pillars of NHS;" character, leadership, scholarship, and service. They must have a GPA of at least 3.5, a rigorous course load, be a leader in the school, and exhibit community involvement.

The graduating Class of 2011 has one of the largest group of NHS inductees that Agawam has ever seen, with 61 members, each successfully demonstrating the highest standards of NHS. The members of the society work hard to represent the students of Agawam in a positive way, showing everyone that some teenagers really do care about their school and community.

Opus Bono Historiae, the national honor society for students of history, is a dedicated group of students who worked hard in their history and social studies classes throughout their high school careers. Advised by Mr. Jennings and Mr. Daley, this group of extremely motivated students are also involved in various activities in the community. These students have already proved their passion for learning about the past, but as a group, they are working to make a better future.

To qualify for membership, juniors and seniors must have completed at least two years of social studies, with a minimum 3.5 GPA. To maintain membership, students need to be currently enrolled in a social studies class. Students must also exhibit qualities of leadership, service, and citizenship in either their school or in a community organization.

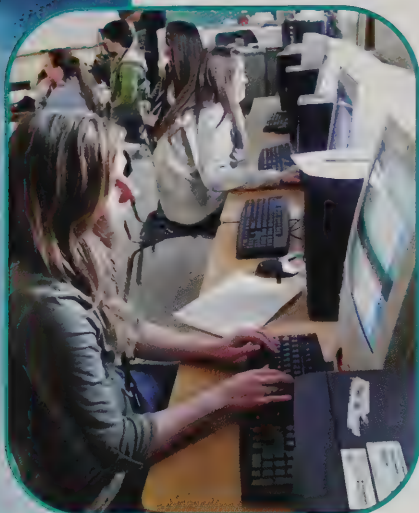

"It was a real honor to receive the status [of] member[ship] in Opus Bono Historiae, and I'm happy for everyone else that did too."
- Jessica Uschmann '11

"All of the honor societies at AHS have so much participation and enthusiasm. I hope they continue to be popular in the coming years."

The international honor society for high school journalists is Quill and Scroll. To qualify for induction, a student must be a senior, who is actively involved with one of the school's literary publications; The Mirror, Sachem, or Uniqorn. In addition, the student must have a strong academic course load, be in the top third of their graduating class, and have the approval of their respective publication adviser. Each student inducted receives a pin and a special cord to wear at graduation.

This year's Quill and Scroll has eleven members and each has demonstrated a strong work ethic and leadership skills. Amongst the members inducted this year are the Editors-In-Chief of both the newspaper and yearbook; the layout, literary, and sports editors, as well as business manager for the Sachem; and the news editor for The Mirror.

"Yearbook was a great experience. It was a lot of hard work, but it taught me time management and responsibility. It's hard to understand how much work actually goes into a yearbook until you work on it first hand."
 - Courtney Rivest '11

"The entire yearbook staff works hard each and every day to produce a book that displays all aspects of AHS. Anyone who has ever been a part of a staff will know it takes exemplary effort and organization to create a unique and interesting portrayal of the high school."
 - Miranda Polaski '11

A FLURRY OF TALENT

The Performing Arts Department puts on shows throughout the school year to the delight of Agawam. They feature music, dance, and theater acts to entertain our small community.

Blowing us away,
time and time again,
these students prove that they truly are the coolest.

- Jaime Colon '14

Below: Jonathan Sadowski and Blake LeClair lend their deeper voices to the song in order to harmonize with the rest of the Chorale.

The Chorale is a group of talented individuals that burst out into perfect harmony every day in their Chorale class. During this course, first year students learn basics, while experienced vocalists expand ranges while singing in two, three, or four parts. This cooperative learning setting allows each student to have a unique experience. It also provides an environment that helps foster the talents of students not yet ready to perform in a larger setting. Under the direction of Ms. Sonja Funk, the Chorale performs at both the Winter and Spring Arts Festivals, as well as various other functions throughout the year. This dedicated ensemble has a unique sound that can bring new life to any song they perform.

HONORS CHORUS

A very talented group of students, the members of the Honors Chorus practice day in and day out to hone their voices to perform. The chorus is under the capable direction of Ms. Funk, who instructs the vocalists in technique and directs their performances. The students strive to amaze their audiences. They regularly perform for the student body and surrounding community, for mosts share their talents outside of the school as well. Meeting every day during school, they rehearse a repertoire of international musical selections. In addition, the students taking the class also take part in the school's bi-annual musical, in conjunction with the chorale and other talented students through open auditions.

WINTER SNOW DAYS

There was a time, not long ago, when students asked why they had not yet received any snow days this year. Mother Nature, in response to their pleas, quickly righted her ship and put forth a "Snowmageddon" of epic size, leading to over a half-dozen outright snow days.

Students took advantage of them at first, catching up on sleep and doing homework, but eventually everyone became frustrated. Underclassmen would need to make up the days in June, and many seniors in AP classes regretted falling so far behind, while also having to deal with less-than-favorable road conditions.

"It's really a fun class. I've been dancing for sixteen years, so the chance to teach other girls what I know - not even [just] dancing, but [about] being a person - it's inspiring to them."
- Lindsey Croteau '12

The choreography class focuses on the art of movement through dance and performance. Open to any student who wants to learn, no experience is necessary, as this class welcomes students of all skill levels. In choreography class, students create dances through experimentation, improvisation, as well as guided exercises and choreography techniques. The members of this class work to synchronize their movements when they dance together.

The choreography group performs at the Winter and Spring Arts Festivals, and always entertains their audience with their original routines. They work hard all year long to perfect these dances, and the effort really shows when they perform.

The students of the Marching Band do more than merely perform on the football field during halftime. The Marching Mohawks also compete with other extremely impressive bands from around New England in M.I.C.C.A. Marching Band Competitions. Agawam consistently places high in their division, and consists of some of the most talented musicians around.

The Marching Band practices two nights a week, and competes on weekends. This is in addition to their practice performances during the halftime shows of all home football games. The Marching Band also lives up to its name by participating in the town's Memorial Day Parade, the St. Patrick's Day Parade in Holyoke, and the Agawam Day Parade at the Big E.

Left: Brianna Hurley leads the band during the third movement of their halftime show, "Elvis." The band works very hard to stay perfectly in step with one another, while finding their next spot in the drill. This is an especially difficult task with so many people and instruments on the field.

The Jazz Band is a very talented ensemble that practices and performs traditional jazz pieces and jazz versions of other music, under the guiding hands of the band director, Mr. Hueglin. This instrumental group is much smaller than others of its nature, as it focuses on a particular genre of music. Students must also audition to become members.

The level of talent that these students possess is astounding. They always leave their audiences wanting more. Members of the Jazz Band can be seen practicing every Monday night, as well as showcasing their talent at the annual jazz café fundraiser. These kids are shocking people with their powerful music wherever they go, and they are proud to say that they honed their skills here at AHS.

PERCUSSION ENSEMBLE

A recent addition to the Performing Arts Department, Percussion Ensemble members take their music seriously. Comprised of student percussionists, it provides a forum for them to practice and demonstrate their skills in the world of music. This tight knit group works hard to continually improve their diversified talents, and works together to be the best musical ensemble that they can be. Each member has the ability to play a wide variety of percussion instruments, and this ensemble allows them to do just that. The songs they play are unique in that they consist only of percussion parts, which makes them stand out from the music of the other bands. It is this distinction that brings them together to make the most beautiful and rhythmic sounds.

This year, a new performing arts class was introduced to the school's program of studies. Freshmen Band is a musical group consisting of ninth graders. In addition, a few upperclassmen also participate to serve as role models for the students. Mr. Hueglin, the Director of Bands, decided to implement this new class so that the freshmen would be able to more easily transition into the high school band. It also allows them to grow as musicians.

This year, Freshmen Band will be playing their own musical selections, along with some additional pieces which they will perform with the Symphonic Band. The band is a beloved part of the high school experience, and Freshmen Band is a stellar addition to that.

Many students are outstanding musicians, and Symphonic Band allows them to show off their talents and shine. In this class, they learn how to improve their playing by focusing on technique and understanding musical composition. Along with working together, they can create beautiful music.

A lot of practicing comes with this commitment to Symphonic Band. Above and beyond their practice at home, students are required to attend two evening practices a week. All of this practice is in preparation for their many performances and the spring MICCA competition. However, students in Agawam don't have to wait for a competition to hear their music, for the band performs regularly throughout the school year.

The performing arts department puts on show after show each year. The students put in hours of hard work, and spend countless rehearsals perfecting their skills. Any person might ask, "Why do you spend so much time?" However no one is surprised to get the answer, that it's just so much fun.

It's interesting to see exactly what goes on behind the scenes, and how much fun those talented students are having. Performances range from the seasonal art festivals to the school musical. Behind the scenes, students are busy with everything from fostering friendships to learning lines.

SHOCK WAVE

The special events at Agawam High help shake up the lives of its many students. They make things interesting, and often chaotic, similar to the aftermath of an earthquake.

Talent shows, the big Thanksgiving Day football game, and the prom, all break up the routine of the school year, capturing the attention of the entire student body.

The Performing Arts Department astounded the community with a passionate rendition of the classic 80's musical, Footloose. In the production, Ren, a big city boy with music in his heart, moves to a small Western town, named Bomont, where dancing is against the law. Although he faces trouble at every turn, he ultimately is able to teach the town how to "cut footloose" and embrace dancing. The show's magic and zeal impressed all who attended, and was a topic of conversation for weeks after the show.

The cast members were steadfast in their rehearsals everyday in their Honors Chorus class, and even late into the evenings for weeks before the performance. Their hard work and many hours spent on the production were evident when Opening Night ushered in a three-night running of the show.

As the school year comes to an end, the anticipation for the AHS Prom grows amongst the students. The prom committee worked for a full year building and painting scenery, creating invitations and favors, selling tickets, and arranging table seatings. All this was done to make sure that everything was perfect in both ballrooms the day of prom.

Upon arriving at the Log Cabin, students received an antique key to the Secret Garden, and had their photographs taken in a front of a cottage backdrop. The scene included a babbling brook and a luscious forest. Wandering through halls decorated with flowers, students also encountered a garden terrace with ivy climbing walls of white lattice, leading to their feast.

The prom was a magical night for all. Fun was had, guests danced to great music, and delicious food was eaten. All returned home safely with a few keepsakes in hand and plenty of fond memories.

Graduation is both a celebration and a reward. The ceremony celebrates the accomplishments of the graduates, and the beginning of a new chapter in their lives. It serves to reward four years of hard work at the high school, and twelve years of progress toward that goal. It is the culmination of each student's perseverance, commitment, self-discipline, and willpower.

The Agawam High School graduating Class of 2010 was not reluctant to approach the stage at Symphony Hall to accept their diplomas, nor was it as hesitant to abandon the halls of Agawam High. Symphony Hall was bustling with excitement as graduates' families and friends approached to observe the speeches and conferring of diplomas.

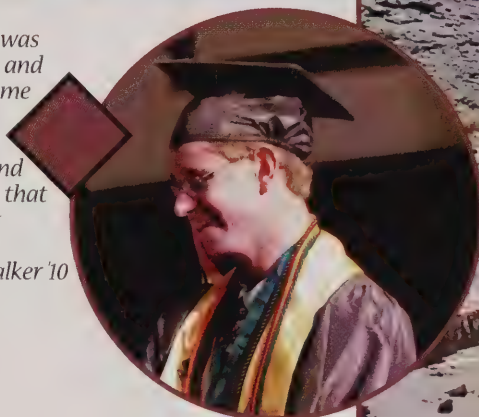

The ceremony and parties that follow are the elements that make graduation the wonderful experience it is for the seniors that truly deserve it.

Above: Mayor Richard Cohen addresses the Class of 2010 in his role as chairperson of the school committee. He told the students that he and the entire town were proud of their accomplishments.

Above Right: Valedictorian Nicholas Gould stresses the value of education and takes the time to thank his teachers for continually challenging him, helping to prepare for his college years at Cornell.

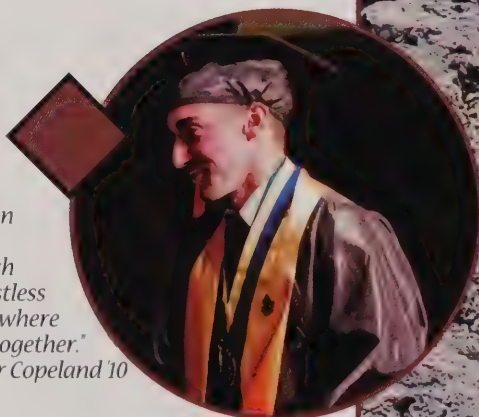

"Graduation was a good time, and it reminded me of all the good memories and good friends that I will miss at Agawam."
- Thomas Walker '10

"Graduation was the perfect finish to my four years! It wasn't sad, just a celebration of moving on to better things."
- Elizabeth Gloster '10

"This is the victorious climax of everything you have achieved. An accumulation of sleepless nights, slavish days, and restless sleep. This is where it all comes together."
- Christopher Copeland '10

Even the seniors, who are the role models for maturity and responsibility at the high school, need a chance to express their inner child once in a while. The annual Kid Party gives, each senior one more chance to dress up, in costume, and act like a kid, just for the fun of it. Costume contests and other fun competitions are held to keep the spirit up and give everyone a chance to get involved.

This year's competitions included a limbo contest, the donut-on-a-string match, as well as a hula-hoop marathon. Winners were awarded with gift cards and class apparel.

This year's seniors brought creativity to a new level. They sported costumes from recent hit movies, holiday-themed garb, as well as outfits of music personalities and even some Agawam High teachers!

As with every year, everyone enjoyed the company of others, even if they looked a little different and acted goofy.

Amidst the controversy surrounding a "hazing incident," whether the students would be able to hold their annual pep rally was doubtful. With the much anticipated announcement that the event would go on as planned, there was an increased effort to prove that the students truly deserved this event. On Wednesday morning, a sea of orange and brown was a strong indication that the upcoming rally would be a positive, unifying experience after a somewhat difficult week for the school.

At the rally, the rhythm of the band, the energy of the cheerleaders, and spirit of the students echoed throughout the gymnasium, which was covered in balloons, streamers, and signage made by members of each class. The Class of 2011 enjoyed their victory in the school song competition, but each class clearly demonstrated their immense school spirit and pride in being the Agawam Brownies.

FINAL SCORE: SENIORS 18- JUNIORS 6

Football is traditionally regarded as the type of game played by men. However, each year, the ladies of the junior and senior classes step in for one special game, and prove that they can play just as well, and aggressively, as the guys.

The annual Powder Puff Game, which is an all-girls football game, provides an opportunity for the juniors and seniors to compete. It is a great exhibition of skill and athleticism, as well as a fun event for spectators looking for something a little different to watch. Those who come to watch the game are treated to a different type of football, and the players in the game can be as competitive as they like, trying to steal the win and the glory for their class.

This year, the Senior Class of 2011 edged out the juniors, led by Quarterback Miranda Polaski. With a final score of 18-6, the senior win streak was kept alive for one more year.

Top Right: Miranda Polaski takes a knee, signaling the final play of the game as teammates Hannah Hellstein and Jessica Uschmann celebrate the victory.

The football players on Thanksgiving Day may have planned to feast on turkey, watch the Patriots, or spend time with family. However, none of that could come before the Brownies stood their ground at Clark Field in West Springfield, where they would engage the Terriers in their annual rivalry football game.

The Brownies took charge of the field early on in the game. They pushed forward with many running plays, hoping for support from the offensive line. The Terriers, however, slipped a few points in early, and it was 14-0 by halftime.

After the break, the Brownies hoped to gain momentum and make a comeback. Despite allowing only six points in the second half, they couldn't muster up anything against the Terriers' stout defense, and lost the game with a final score of 20-0. They hope to make a stand next year, where they will defend their home turf.

Every year, the drama club produces an evening performance for all to see. This year, the club presented a double feature, with two plays coming together to create one spectacular show.

The first of the two plays, The Search for Cindy, featured a teenage boy named Tim who was dumped by his girlfriend, Cindy. Now desperate for a girlfriend, Tim searched far and wide for a replacement, with one very strict stipulation: his girlfriend had to be named Cindy. This led to comedic action and exciting scenes throughout the rest of the play.

The second, 4 A.M., was more confusing and abstract. Many actors claimed even they were a bit confused by the play, but given their restricted amount of time to practice, they believe it turned out better than they had expected.

Overall, those who attended enjoyed both plays, and the drama club is excited to perform more shows in the future.

What should we really do during activity periods?

"School wide nap-time. Who couldn't use a siesta?"
- Emily Roundy '11

"Divide the time out to all the lunches so there'd be a day with a long lunch and only six periods. Cmon, we need a break."
- Erik Wilson '11

"I think we should have a break period, because if students have tests they could be well-rested."
- Michael Cody Bryden '12

Students, teachers, and staff work hard throughout the year, whether it be taking notes, grading papers, or preparing for tests. It is when we need a break from our busy schedules that activity periods are most appreciated. These activities range from all-school sports tournaments, drama presentations, and even a student vs. teacher basketball game. In addition, school assemblies on various issues such as sexting and the environment have been held. When students get a break from their day-to-day monotony, it helps everyone stay happier and more productive.

STIRRING IT UP

Clubs are an interesting way to spend time with friends, help the community, or just have some fun. They can offer the chance for students to do something they have never done before, or reignite old interests. The many different clubs at Agawam offer students the chance to stir it up. Like a tornado, there is a whirlwind of activities that represent all aspects of the school.

Many people find that, although they enjoy drawing, painting, and sculpting more than many other common hobbies, it may not fit into their busy class schedules. Or, maybe it does, but they just can't get enough of it. Whatever the reason may be, students present at art club meetings all share one thing: the enjoyment of being creative and expressing themselves and their ideas artistically in a variety of ways. A large array of options exist for those who attend meetings. The club frequently utilizes different mediums, including sculpture, painting, and sketching. The students that commit to the group face no attendance obligations. Anyone may join at any time, and the group is always open to new members.

As School's Match Wits is one of the most unique clubs. They meet to compete, but unlike other groups, their final showdown is aired on local television. As School's Match Wits is a show in its 50th season, and features teams from area schools that answer trivia questions in a battle for points. The team trains for the different style rounds by asking each other a variety of trivia questions and competing against one another.

The team is proud to report a win during the taping, which aired on January 29th. Unfortunately, they did not earn enough points to move on to the next round of the game. With promising underclassmen learning all they can, the team's chances for next year are looking great.

Matthew Bassette and Anthony Vatosiou discuss a strategic plan of action for the game show, deciding which categories to pick first according to the team's strengths.

Board Game Club provides students an opportunity to relax and unwind after a long day at school. The group meets weekly to play traditional board games, from Chutes and Ladders to Uno. Members can enjoy the games and activities provided by their adviser Ms. Davis, or they can bring in some of their own favorites. The members always have a great time after school, enjoying the company of their fellow classmates, beyond the normal school day. The setting and vibe are relaxing, although members have been known to get quite caught up in the competition at times. Coupled with monthly group outings, such a trip to a local bowling alley, this group never stops having fun.

The members of Budding Friendships meet regularly after school to participate in various activities such as arts and crafts, games, karaoke, and bingo. The group was formed to build relationships between students with and without special needs, which otherwise may not have been forged without this nurturing environment to push them in the right direction. The students decide which activities they want to do as a group, always keeping a safe and comfortable atmosphere to make certain that everyone feels welcomed and has fun. Participation in this group improves the lives of everyone involved and helps to foster an understanding about students with and without special needs.

Members of the club often participate in arts and crafts, constructing projects for all seasons. Here, Amber Stepanik and Brittany Kamyk build and decorate a foam gingerbread house.

Christopher Fontaine shows off a king, one of his favorite chess pieces, because he feels like the king of chess, after having just won a very difficult match.

In chess, the game's greatest player is said to be the grandmaster. Every year, many strive to achieve this title, however, only one can do so despite so many talented players entering the competitions. From the looks of our own chess club, you might think we have a future grandmaster here.

For years, chess has been regarded as the ultimate thinking man's game. There is no luck involved, and players must win based solely on their skill and assessment of the other player's moves. Each player shows extreme focus in their matches and regardless of who wins, there is always the satisfaction that a game was well-played.

Gaetano Scuderi uses his positive influence to break up a potential fight between Angela Grassetto and Christopher Jamgochian. Helping keeping peace between students is one of the many responsibilities of a being a Chief.

CHIEFS

Coty Shean helps to beautify his school by picking up stray trash and recycling it. The mission of each Chief is to better their school and the environment around them.

"The Chiefs is a great program for the high school, because it gives the freshmen and sophomores someone to look up to, especially at the beginning of the year."
- Leisl Bard '12

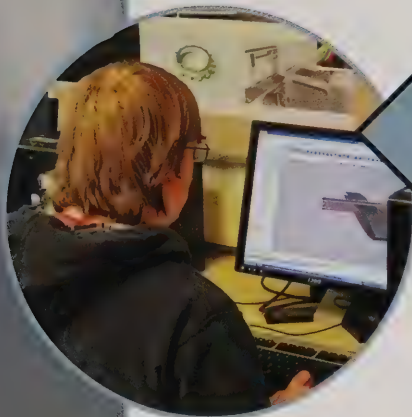

Incoming freshman often enter the high school in September confused and in desperate need of a helping hand. Thankfully, the Chiefs are there to assist. A committed group of upperclassmen, the Chiefs' purpose is to aid other students in times of need, as well as be positive role models for guidance and safety amongst all classes. Each member is expected to display the characteristics of a Chief in their everyday life, and help out whenever the opportunity arises.

Headed by Mr. Lemanski, this group is a symbol of integrity and helpfulness, attributes that Agawam High hopes its students will demonstrate every day, whether they are a Chief or not.

Every week, future directors, video editors, and video game designers can be found working in Mr. Brown's computer lab during Computer and Video Club meetings. The members of this group learn how to use high-tech cameras and software to edit video. In addition, students can use other software applications to work on their own creative projects, such as designing video games. The members discuss their individual pursuits, as well as collaborating on group productions that truly demonstrate just how much they learn through their involvement with the club. The goal is to provide students with an opportunity to experiment with and learn about different media applications.

- Ashleigh Theroux '14

In Agawam, drama has always been something big. Most students first get the acting bug in junior high productions, and when these actors get to the high school, they are immediately drawn to the larger productions done here. They can't wait to let their talents shine and perform in front of a larger audience.

The Drama Club is responsible for many of the theatrical productions at AHS. Their performances are highlighted during arts festivals, as well as skits offered during activity periods. The club performs a wide variety of plays ranging from the comedic and tragic to the downright dramatic. The members are passionate about their craft, and love to entertain others.

The Foreign Language Club is a group that exists to appreciate foreign cultures and all things associated with them. Students in this club are able to come together and discuss different aspects of foreign language and foreign culture alike, including food, dance, and music.

Meetings are conducted in the foreign language and consumer sciences classrooms and feature students from various classes, all of whom join together to share and explore this common interest. The club often cooks and eats foreign foods. They also engage in group projects to celebrate foreign cultures. Many students are excited to be a part of this new group, and enjoy the many activities their foreign language advisers have planned.

- Vincent Graziano '11*

The Future Medical Careers Club is still fairly new to the school, but that is not to say that it isn't popular. This club was started to give students who want to work in the medical field a place to meet and discuss their goals, offering them insight into the world of medicine. The group hosts guest speakers that share their knowledge and experiences with the students who share common interests. This provides students a more intimate look at the various professions that are available in the field. In addition, students participate in fundraisers for charities associated with the medical field. This group is just another way to further the knowledge and experiences of students at Agawam High.

Patrick Shea listens intently to a guest speaker's discussion, concerning medical advances in cancer treatment.

The Future Teachers of America meet every other week, guiding students, who wish to pursue careers in education, down the right path to reaching their goals. The students have the opportunity to shadow teachers to gain experience and also work together to sponsor quite a few activities throughout the school year. Annually, the group organizes the class penny war, pitting the classes against each other to raise money; a student vs. teacher basketball game, for school-wide enjoyment; and an even more successful blood drive in collaboration with the American Red Cross. The group also helps to raise money for scholarships given to graduates looking to enter the field of education.

The Gay Straight Alliance strives to make everyone feel accepted. Every week, they meet to socialize, eat food, talk together, discuss issues, support each other, and plan events. It is a safe haven, a place for everyone to talk and support each other. The membership is made up of gay, lesbian, bisexual, and straight students and staff. Their ultimate mission is to make Agawam High School a more accepting and welcoming place for everyone.

Their motto is, "We're straight. We're gay. We're GSA! There's no hiding who you are. You are who you are. Join us. We'll accept you." This is something they exemplify in their lives everyday.

The group is open to any student or faculty member who wishes to read and discuss a wide variety of books. The group is run by Mr. Bodurtha and Madame Kundl. However, everyone involved gets to help decide what the group will read next during their monthly meetings. The club strives to broaden their horizons by choosing books that people their age are not generally reading. Intergenerational Book Club meets to discuss the book, their members' opinions, and the deeper meanings behind the topics in it, before diving enthusiastically right into their next read.

Japanese Club is a celebration of culture, language, and phenomena associated with Japan. This includes television, anime, film, and music. The club frequently discusses different aspects of Japanese lore, and spends time each week engaging in different activities.

Depending on when a person might visit a meeting, they may witness an art project in the style similar to that of Japanese art. Other days, the group simply discusses video games and movies, often spending time watching some of their favorites.

Passionate about their interests, members can be seen wearing clothes with Japanese logos or caricatures, and often spend time at home enjoying Japanese culture.

Adviser Mr. Cilimberg leads a meeting, informing the members of what the group's new project will be, and what new service opportunities are available.

Key Club International is a service program for high school students. Its main objective is to develop initiative and leadership amongst members by serving their school and community. The core values of the group are leadership, character building, caring, and inclusiveness.

The school's chapter has a large membership that really makes a difference in the community. This year, members collected donations for "Toys for Joy," along with the National Honors Society; raised money to send to the Haitian relief efforts; and also volunteered their time to work at a haunted hayride. Our students take the group's motto, "Caring—Our Way of Life" seriously, and put it into action every day.

The students who take part in the Western Massachusetts Math League, otherwise known as "Mathletes," strengthen their math skills by competing against more than twenty-five area high schools. The students prove their skills by answering questions in three of the six rounds of mathematical knowledge, each with three problems, with varying degrees of difficulty. Topics for the rounds come from courses offered in a traditional high school curriculum and include Number Theory, Algebra I, Geometry, Algebra II, Trigonometry, and Pre-Calculus. The school's team is extremely strong and generally places in the top five schools, along with such schools as Deerfield Academy and Longmeadow High.

The journalism classes work hard to bring the student body the latest news and information in their publication, The Mirror. The newspaper gives students a chance to gain experience working behind the scenes, while reporting the happenings of the school, in addition to local and national news. The Mirror also provides information on current trends, popular culture, as well as featured students and staff.

The editors and journalists-to-be work together to put out six issues a year, for everyone to enjoy. Students not enrolled in Journalism, may also submit stories to The Mirror as a "roving reporter", making the publication that much more diverse.

"Model Congress is an excellent club in which we debate legislation written by other students. It is incredibly fun and we get to really experience life as a politician."
- Maura Curran '12

Model Congress is a competition held at American International College. One of the oldest of its kind, it teaches students about their form of government as they debate proposed legislation. Each year, around twenty schools hold a mock session of Congress, to teach students how our legislative branch operates. Presenting themselves in a professional manner, these students practice debating and public speaking skills.

Preparing throughout the year to ready themselves for Model Congress, each student writes his or her own bill to propose at the event. After each bill is presented, it must then be defended. Members of each participating school decide on one bill to bring to the session.

Vincent Graziano, Patrick Shea, and Gabriella Leon show off their thinking faces, which they used to plan out their debate strategy before their big competition.

Peer Leadership's main goal is to promote the abstinence of drug and alcohol use, and to educate students on the harmful consequences of their abuse. During trips to other Agawam schools, members help to educate younger students about the dangers of drugs, and life at the high school.

Civic-minded, the club also hosts many fundraisers throughout the year for local organizations. This year, they raised a record amount of money for Shriners Hospital with their annual Costume Week. The group also held their second annual Turkey Fundraiser, a raffle whose proceeds fed local families at Thanksgiving. To fund scholarships, the group held a silent auction.

Peer Mediation provides support throughout the year to students in conflict with other students. By requesting mediation, students can hopefully resolve problems before they escalate. Mediations occur in a confidential setting with student mediators, not administrators. While peer mediators were first trained in at the junior high school, any student wishing to join can attend the Project P.E.A.C.E meetings held in conjunction with Peer Mediation.

The club is perhaps most well known for its Peace Week every December, a time when statistically more fights occur. The week includes peaceful music and tips about managing stress.

Jillian Newton observes fellow mediator, Carly Michel, as she proposes a new plan of action for the group. It includes new ways to incorporate their slogan, "Don't Hate, Mediate!"

Osediamen Aimua helps a student struggling in Algebra, because it is one of his best subjects. Ose loves sharing his knowledge.

Students, like Patrick Shea, can start tutoring as early as their freshman year. By having a wide variety of tutors, the club is able to assist a larger range of students.

Peer Tutoring offers assistance to students after school twice a week, for no charge. The tutors are in various grades and meet regularly on Mondays and Thursdays to offer a helping hand to those students struggling with their course work. With a wide range of available tutors, students are certain to find someone to help them with their particular subject.

In exchange for seeking help, the student who stays after to get help earns a bonus coupon. At the teacher's discretion, these coupons are usually worth five points on a test or quiz. Coupled with a student's new found understanding of a difficult topic, the scholar's grades can really skyrocket.

The programming team prepares all year round for their trip to Western New England College where they work diligently with computers for six hours, all in the hopes of winning a competition. Consisting of some of the brightest computing minds in Western Massachusetts, the members of this club continually learn languages and new techniques to create programs that will astound the judges. Every week after school, and even during some late nights, the team meets to sharpen their programming skills and get advice from previous team alumni. During the competition, the team will get a task and must write and compile an efficient program to meet the objectives and criteria specified.

The Prom Committee works all year long to make the prom a magical night for the entire student body. The first meeting concerning the 2011 prom occurred one week after last year's event, where the new and old committee members chose a new theme, "The Phantom of the Opera." Once the theme was chosen, decisions were made quickly and work began. The committee met every other week during the summer and various times throughout the year, including over school vacations. They created backdrops for photos, and designed tickets and favors, which included personalized Playbills and chocolate phantom masks. All done to ensure that our prom night was never forgotten.

"F.I.R.S.T. Robotics challenges kids to apply math and science in an exciting and creative way."
- Sarah Taylor '11

The robotics team, also known as Rosie Robotics, provides a chance for any student to gain experience in a field that they desire. The overall task of the team is to build a robot for competition. The team meets twice a week during their off season and six days a week during their intensive six-week build season in January and February. A goal of the team is to teach STEM education, to any student willing to learn. However, there is also room on the team for students, not interested in robotics, as there is also an executive board that helps plan and keep the team organized. The group is part of the F.I.R.S.T. organization, which stands for "For Inspiration and Recognition of Science and Technology."

Students and teachers alike get excited about S.A.V.E., showing off their bulletin board in the rotunda, where other students can learn about the club's happenings.

Members of the club literally get into nature, showing how dedicated they are to saving and protecting our environment for future generations.

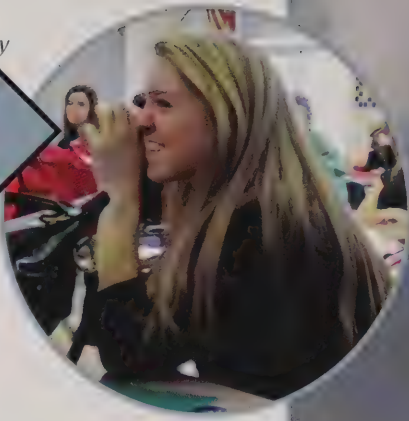

For years, Agawam has taken a proactive approach in keeping the environment clean and healthy. Often times, students and faculty alike have joined in cleanups throughout the town and in everyday recycling, all in an effort to keep Earth healthy.

S. A. V. E. (Students Against Violating the Environment) is committed each year to cleaning up waste and sorting it to be efficient. The students in S. A. V. E. are responsible for walking around and collecting the waste from recycling bins, as well as advocating for a conscious effort to recycle during lunch. The group hopes that even those outside the club will think twice before harming the environment and rather take steps to save the planet.

I think it's great that so many people our age can actually appreciate Shakespeare. Most of his works have a lot of ideas we can relate to if we just try.
- Benjamin Flythe '11

English loving students of all ages, especially senior AP students, assemble each year to form Shakespeare Society. The society allows students to learn about and share their appreciation for the works of William Shakespeare, considered by many to be the world's greatest playwright.

In many regards, the group is both academic and social. Open to any interested students, the main objective is to develop activities for Shakespeare Week held in April. Activities includes creating skits based on his plays as well as sharing famous quotes each day during announcements. Students are also able to compete in contests where they can win prizes for their efforts.

Humans are not meant to hibernate. Those who want to engage in winter fun, without the stress of competition or constant practices, can join the Ski Club. Making frequent trips on Friday evenings and Saturdays to Vermont, members get to experience nearby venues, as a different mountain is chosen for each trip.

The daredevils in Ski Club love to go to the terrain parks to jump off big ramps and grind rails. Occasionally, they even race each other just for the fun and glory. Students with more experience can ski or snowboard down the Black Diamonds, the steepest trails on a mountain. At Killington, the ski club had an exciting ride in a gondola, a lift that can bring eight people to the mountain top.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Richard Porfilio, Joseph Laviano, and Mari Leclerc love to support "Stud Gov" in any way they can, even if it means giving up their lunch time.

"We take part in the Relay For Life, and I have enjoyed going on the Boston field trip every year. It's been a great club to be a part of, and I can't wait for next year."
-Jillian Newton '12

Student Government was created to provide a student representative body to receive questions and suggestions, promote the rights of each student, and provide the official voice through which student opinion may be expressed. The group fosters awareness of the students' role in the academic community, and it allows them to hone their leadership skills.

The group is open to any student interested in pursuing leadership opportunities. Besides an annual trip to Boston to visit the State House and walk the Freedom Trail, this group oversees class elections. In addition, the student government participates in the Relay For Life, which raises money for cancer research.

Eric McCann and Joseph Pidgeon display one of the Unicorn signs, which encourages students to submit their work for publication. Boxes are found in English classrooms and the library.

Members of the Unicorn staff proudly pose with their mascot, a purple unicorn.

The Unicorn is the literary magazine that showcases the creative writing of students for the enjoyment of all. The publication mainly consists of poems, short stories, as well as artwork submitted for consideration. The staff welcome submissions of creative writing and art from anyone who is willing to have their work published. By allowing for a wide range of works to be submitted, the publication has become quite diverse over the years.

Any student can become a member of the literary staff. Responsibilities of members includes encouraging and reviewing submissions, designing the page layouts, and marketing the final product at the end of the school year once published.

THE SIMPSONS CLUB

Luke Miranda enjoys hanging out with his friends and watching The Simpsons, because it's funnier when they can all laugh together.

'I watch The Simpsons a lot. Lisa is my favorite character, because of the way she acts with her family. I learn a lot [about] pop culture through this [show].'
- William Howe '12

The Simpsons club meets weekly to bring together fans of the classic, long-running cartoon show. Started this year, it provides a forum for students to share their interest in the show. During the meetings, members not only watch an episode of the show, but also discuss the background behind it, for there are many references that most people would not normally recognize.

Members share and learn interesting facts about the show. For instance, The Simpsons began in December 1989 and has been running for 22 seasons. Known for its witty and humorous social commentary, the show beat the well-loved Cosby Show for ratings during the same time slot on Thursday nights, and led to its cancellation.

Luke Miranda and Jessica Jenkins watch the show intently. They love how it provides commentary on a variety of subjects that some viewers don't even notice.

LAYOUT

There are a lot of decisions to be made when creating a yearbook from its theme, to color and font schemes, to the size and shape of the pictures we will need. These decisions are all made way in advance of putting a single picture or line of text on a page. Editor Courtney Rivest, along with Hannah Pender, take the time to make each page as eye catching as possible. They make sure that the content we want has an appropriate space, and place it there as pictures and text are provided.

SPORTS

What was the score of that softball playoff game back in May of last year? Who was the captain of the golf team? Wait, we actually have a ski team? The answers to all these questions, and many more, are answered by Editor Miranda Polaski and Mari Leclerc. They spend endless hours typing up scorecards, identifying and interviewing athletes, writing sports stories, and making sure that the sports section is not only informational, but also accurately reflects the diversity of our athletes.

LITERARY

Compared to many yearbooks, there is an overwhelming amount of text in the Sachem. An entire staff is dedicated just to writing the words you will read in this book. With stories for every club, honor society, academic department, and countless captions and profiles, the literary staff always has their hands full. Editor Matthew Bassette and Emily Roundy are always hard at work, composing catchy and insightful captions, stories, and profiles to set lasting memories in stone forever.

BUSINESS

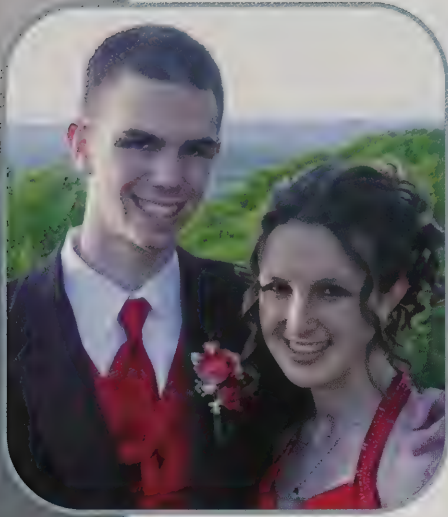

An extreme amount of time is spent creating the Sachem. Everyone knows that. What people might not know, though, is the amount of work necessary in dealing with the finances behind the scenes, whether it involves selling $15,000 in ads and senior salutes, or processing over 650 yearbook orders. Headed by Nicholas Cormier, with the assistance of Meghan Costello, the business department takes the responsibility of keeping everything behind the scenes running smoothly.

PHOTOGRAPHY

The yearbook need candids, lots of candids, and the photography staff is there to provide them. Each day, Editor Michael Nicoli, Richard Gingras, and Tasya Ward can be seen with their cameras roaming the halls. When not taking pictures, they are uploading them into photo libraries, tagging them, and deleting unneeded images to make space for more pictures to come. This staff has one of the most difficult jobs, and only with their help, are we able to get the yearbook done.

SACHEM STAFF

Being on the Sachem staff for the past two years has been an adventure like no other. As Co-Editor-in-Chief this year, I am proud to say we all pulled through and this amazing yearbook is our proof.

This yearbook never would've been completed if not for our hardworking adviser. Mr. Trahan, without all of the extra hours you put in to help us with this book, it would not have been completed on time. Thank you for everything!

I also never would have survived if it were not for my best friend and my Co-Editor-In-Chief, Shannon Reardon. She is there for me through it all, and together we were able to work with Mr. Trahan to make sure this book, our senior high school yearbook, met all of our expectations. In the spring of our junior year, Mr. Trahan said we may soon hate each other and cause each other tears due to the yearbook. I am proud to say that two years later, we have proved him completely wrong. I am really going to miss working with you and seeing your smiling face everyday next year. Thank you!

To our small, but hardworking staff, you defied all of my expectations. I was afraid that with so few of us and such a large book, that the work load was going to be monstrous, but I was wrong. Miranda, thank you for doing sports for a second year, your experience was evident. Matt, having you write stories made my life so much easier. Courtney, you had a difficult position that you were not happy about taking, but you did great! Mike, you take truly amazing photos, but sometimes a few more would have been nice. Nick and Meg, your "odd ball" tasks were so helpful, I can not even explain. You all pulled together and made it work.

To my friends and family, I never would have survived high school without you. Mom and Dad, thank you for loving and supporting me through everything. Chris, you might drive me crazy, but I still love you. Sarah, you have been beside me for eighteen years, and I would not have it any other way. Alex, you have had to deal with me through everything, and I really appreciate it. Hannah, through thick or thin, we always ended up laughing. I love you all!

This whole experience has been one I will never forget, and I would do it all again in an instant. Thank you to everyone who has helped to make this yearbook what it is. Good Luck 2011!

I'd like to first thank Mr. Trahan. Thanks for this incredible opportunity. I've loved being a part of this book ever since I started, and I owe it all to you. Thank you for the countless hours, hard work, and endless dedication. This is a huge commitment, and if it were not for you, this book would not be as amazing as it is. And thanks for all the food, it's yummy and motivating!

To the staff, you are awesome. I know we all put our hearts into this book, and it's amazing! Thank you all for everything you've done, and all your time. Court, you probably had the hardest time, but you didn't give up, and came up with some really cool layouts. Mike, you were new. You didn't like being bossed around, but in the end it all worked out. The pictures are perfect. Matt, it's been a long two years, but look what you've produced. I can understand your desire to steal proofs. I was excited to see the pages and your stories too. Miranda, it's been such a great experience working with you. I know you were sick of sports, and didn't let anyone forget it. However you still kept going, and the pages are wonderful. To all the other staff, and our miscellaneous staff of Nick and Meg, you all worked so hard doing whatever was needed. I hope you are proud when you look at the product, because I know I am.

Wow, Cindy! There was no crying. Well, at least about yearbook. This year has had more ups and down than the rest of my life put together. You were there for me though it all. I can't even begin to say how much your friendship means to me. Your help as an editor was just what I needed. I could fill up this text box just talking about you, but I'm just going to say thanks. You know for what. I love you.

To every relative, friend, teacher, or complete stranger who has helped me over the past four years in any way, I thank you with my whole heart. Mom and Dad, I don't even know what to say. I literally owe everything to you. Thanks for the amazing life I lead. You guys are so much a part of everything I do. I love you. Dennis, thanks for putting up with me. I know I can be a jerk, but it was no picnic putting up with you either. I'll miss you next year, no matter how much I pretend I won't. Don't worry, we'll still have some crazy adventures. To all my friends, you make my life complete. Do I need to say more?

I can't express all my thanks to everyone reading this. You are why we do this.

POWER VS. TECHNIQUE

"Refined technique, because you need to be able to walk before you can run."

Light Yellow: Males who chose "refined technique"

In many sports, there are two crucial elements that athletes must possess in order to succeed: the capability to perform tasks with strength and power, and the skill to do them with precise accuracy and great technique.

How this applies to each sport varies: driving a golf ball far, while also placing it on the fairway; setting up a one-timer in ice hockey, with the strength to follow through and score; hitting a long double in baseball, then using speed and the perfect slide to score.

So which is more important? Is either more important? It's your call.

Left: Power is often a deciding factor in some games. Senior Zachary Seaver prepares to send a volleyball crashing down on the opponent's side.

Below left: In the very technical sport of girls' lacrosse, accurate passing is crucial, as Courtney Rivest knows.

Left: The javelin throw is an example of a combination of power and technique. One must have exceptional form and exert great force to throw the javelin far. Michael Kosior demonstrates both.

Below: Thomas Borsari winds up to take a power shot in floor hockey, hoping to beat the goalie with the pure speed of the ball.

"Sheer power. If you don't want to do something with power and passion, you'll never take the time to refine your technique."

BREWING UP A STORM

The school's athletes are a group of dedicated and motivated individuals. They are committed to their sport, and are determined to win.

Strong and fierce like a hurricane, the teams are always ready to go, equipped to brew up a storm.

DOMINIC SERRA CLASS OF 2011

Dominic Serra has been playing baseball since before he could read. Before that, he would watch it on television with his dad, uncles, and cousins. It has always been a large part of his life. Dom plays outfield, and is also a crucial member of the team when up at bat and running the bases.

"I love [baseball.] It is fun and laid back." Dom also liked the unity his team had, and how everyone contributed to their overall victories this season. One of his favorite memories, other than all the crazy bus rides, was when the team beat West Springfield to qualify for tournament play. Next season, he hopes to have another as good, if not better, year. With a coach who can "light a fire under us," anything is possible!

Scott Urban, a senior, hustles to second base in hopes of making a great slide, to avoid being tagged by the Southwick shortstop.

Junior pitcher Kyle Szatrowski had an amazing season on the mound. Here, he prepares to deliver a fastball to his opponent from school rival West Springfield.

Senior Justin Wright looks to round third base and head home after a great hit by one of his teammates.

The Agawam Baseball Team had many ups and downs this past season. They faced many challenging opponents, ending the season with a respectable record of 12-9. The team relied on Ryan Labonte, Kyle Szatrowski, and Andrew Smith for solid pitching on the mound. Defensively, Catcher Kevin Fruwirth was indispensable in protecting home plate from Agawam's very worthy opponents. The team worked together towards their common goal of winning games. The team consisted of solid players, not only on the defensive side, but offensively as well. Juniors Dominic Serra, Christopher Colitti, Andrew Wallis, and Kyle Szatrowski led the team in hits this season. Together, the team performed well, and progressed to the Western Mass. Quarter Finals. In that game against Westfield, the team played with their hearts, but unfortunately lost with a final score of 3-2. "The majority of our players will be returning next season, so we should be a solid team and hopefully succeed," says Junior Christopher Colitti. Agawam Baseball cannot wait to get back out onto the diamond in the upcoming spring.

JOHN "JACK" COWELL
CLASS OF 2011

John, also known as Jack by his teammates, has been playing lacrosse since seventh grade when one of his friends, Jason Zordani, convinced him to play. He has been a fan of the sport ever since. 'I love playing lacrosse, because it is enjoyable, fast-paced, and spontaneous.'

Whether on the field or just hanging out with his friends, every day brought a new experience and something for Jack to learn. This season, the team improved, and Jack expects the team to be even better next year. Knowing attitude affects performance, he hopes to remain positive. With outstanding coaches and the encouragement of family and teammates, Jack wants to make the best of his last season at Agawam High.

BOYS' LACROSSE

The boys' lacrosse team had nowhere to go but up this season. The team came together with a positive attitude, ending the season with a 9-11 record. A drastic improvement over last year, the team was able to triumph over many of its opponents. Top scorers Devin Basile and Michael Stempel put many goals in the net to move the team towards several victories. Goalie Jason Zordani was able to maintain a strong defensive position, while keeping the team focused. Everyone on the team always contributed during practice to maintain a positive environment. Overall, the boys concentrated on the task at hand, and worked hard to succeed on the field and achieve their goal of playing in the Western Mass Tournament. Unfortunately, even with the dedication of every player, the team was still one game short from making the play-offs. The boys lacrosse team will be losing thirteen seniors to graduation and everyone is sad to see them go. Despite this, the remaining underclassmen foresee an even stronger performance next year due to their training and experiences they had this season.

GIRLS' LACROSSE

TAYLOR LUNDEN
CLASS OF 2013

Taylor Lunden has always had a passion for sports, but soccer and basketball were what she had always played. However, in fifth grade, her friend Riley Hellstein, who loved to play lacrosse, convinced her to try the sport. To Taylor's surprise, she loved to play. Taylor not only enjoyed the game, but realized she was a natural when it came to lacrosse. Immediately, Taylor was making a profound impact on her team, and soon played on traveling teams that took part in more rigorous and competitive schedules. As the high school season grew closer, Taylor was nervous, but anticipated a strong showing at tryouts. With encouragement from her father and supportive teammates, the transition from in-town to the Agawam Varsity Lacrosse Team was a breeze. "We have great team chemistry and we always have fun with each other." Taylor looks forward to three more years of playing lacrosse at Agawam High, and she plans to make the best of every moment. Hopefully that means a Western Mass. title in the near future.

Katelyn Landry may not have been one of the loudest girls on the team, but her presence was never missed on the lacrosse field.

Captains Morgan Lockwood and Caitlin Frazier stand accompanied by Head Coach Carla Lemnah-Warner and Asst Coach Megan Gloster.

Riley Hellstein may be a freshman, but she is still a force to be reckoned with. This is demonstrated in the draw she takes against a South Hadley player. Riley also set the school record for goals scored by a freshman this season.

Alexa Guidetti, a junior, scoops a ground ball in the midfield before looking to pass it to an open teammate.

When asking a member of the girls' lacrosse team how their season went this year, she would not have one negative word to say. Captains Caitlin Frazier and Morgan Lockwood helped to keep the team together and maintain an overall positive attitude. "Our team was so unselfish and had great chemistry. We all connected very well on the field and offensively we had a lot of play makers," said Lockwood. Finishing the season with a 15-5 record, Agawam Girls' Lacrosse had one of their strongest seasons to date. With several new additions to the team, including freshmen Riley Hellstein and Taylor Lunden, the scoreboards kept rising by them putting many goals into the net. A force to be reckoned with on defense, Ashley Cross, protected the goal. The team made it to the Western Mass. Semifinals against Minnechaug, which was held at Elms College. After a large deficit at halftime, they came back to lose by only one goal with a final score of 11-12. With quality players returning next season, everyone on the team is looking forward to the opportunity to even the score with Minnechaug.

MAURISA OLLARI

Maurisa began playing baseball in the fourth grade. Baseball? Yes, that's right, baseball! Before making the transition to softball in eighth grade, Maurisa had played youth baseball. She began to play because she had grown up watching the Red Sox and wanted to give the sport a try. She really enjoyed playing, but she knew that when she went to high school, she would be forced to make the transition from one game to the next. After a few adjustments in her technique, she fit right in. With an almost perfect fielding record this year, Maurisa was a vital asset to the team. She helped carry them to Western Mass. Semifinals. This captain and positive teammate is always looking to improve herself, and to boost the confidence within her fellow teammates. "The team does really well, [especially] when we have a lot of confidence in each other."

Whether on or off the diamond, the Agawam Girls' Softball Team stuck together through it all. Overall, the girls had a very successful season, ending with a 17-5 record. Everyone worked collectively to achieve their goal of making it to Western Mass. The softball team had a very strong infield as well as outfield, and they were able to combat their opponents with little trouble. Captains Allyson Witaszek, Jessica Colson, and Maurisa Ollari were able to motivate their teammates and prepare everyone for each game. At one point or another, each player made key plays and contributed in the best way possible. "Every year, the team is always extremely close. We all get along great," said Junior Jessica Uschmann. The girls made it to the first Western Mass. Quarter Final game against Cathedral. They won with a score of 7-0 and advanced to the Semifinals against West Springfield. Unfortunately, their season ended there, only losing by one run. Agawam Girls' Softball looks forward to another successful season next year!

"This was by far my most memorable high school team, and I feel as though we all became closer and closer throughout the season. I would not have wanted to spend [the] spring sport of my sophomore year with any other group of girls! I can't wait to see what next year will bring!"
- Alexis Page '12

JESSE CONKLIN
CLASS OF 2011

Jesse began to play tennis simply to pursue an interest of his. He had played pick-up games for quite sometime, but he never played competitively. He appreciates the strategy involved, and how he can manipulate his opponent. Coach Podworski has been a great mentor for Jesse and has helped him become a better player. Also, Jesse admits having soccer players as teammates was definitely beneficial when it came to getting into shape. His favorite memory this year was when the team shut out Chicopee during the last match of the season. Not only was it a good end to their season, but it was followed by a celebration. There was great food, and the team had fun by goofing off and throwing water at each other. There was never lack of humor, and for that reason, Jesse can't wait for the 2011 season.

BOYS' TENNIS

For the twenty athletes on the Agawam Boys' Tennis Team, this season was something many of them will remember forever. On the court, they may not have had as many wins as they would have liked, but every day provided a new challenge, an experience, or a chance to grow as an athlete and as a person. This year's team was very close and really enjoyed cracking jokes with each other, and pushing one another towards improving their game. Whether a freshman or a senior, everyone got along well. As the season progressed, it became more and more evident that the team was growing as a whole. They won their last three matches, which was a huge accomplishment. They even shut out Chicopee during their last match, a perfect ending to their season. Coach Podworski, commenting on the boys' accomplishments this year, stated, "It was a challenging season with the new league alignment, but the kids stepped up match after match. The outlook for 2011 is very good." Next year, the players hope to have just as compatible a team and continue to grow together.

"[The best memory was] our final home game. We had a little party that turned into a water war where Coach ended up getting soaked!"
- Brian Piquette '10

"[My favorite part about tennis] was how Coach Pod did a good job putting double teams together, and with last minute changes, we won our last few matches." - Matthew Davenport '12

ALEXIS MIRSKI
CLASS OF 2013

"I wanted a new experience with something, so I began to take lessons and fell in love with it." Alexis began to play tennis in seventh grade, and she has grown as a player ever since. As a freshman, she decided to try out for the high school team, with hopes of playing in a few matches. Little did she know that she would become a large part of the team's success. Alexis competed in doubles with partner Hannah Hellstein. They relied on each other for words of encouragement and pushed one another to improve during every match. Some of the best memories were on the court, like the team's exciting match against Longmeadow. Other experiences, such as tie-dyeing, really made the team come together off the court. Alexis would like to be more aggressive with net play, and she is excited for all of the possibilities that next year could bring.

Agawam Girls' Tennis had a very exciting season. Each spring, over forty girls try out in hopes of making the varsity team. After a few days of tryouts, Coach Mary Wolochowicz finally found her team. Every day the girls worked together to improve individually, as well as a team, in order to achieve their very best. Senior captains, Ricki Olson and Molly Uzar, were able to bring the team together and help intensify everyone's drive to reach their ultimate goal of making Western Mass. Throughout the season the girls had many successes. A few sophomores stepped up, including Kara Peters and Emily Davenport. As a whole, everyone on the team contributed at one point or another. If a player was not on the court, she was always cheering on her teammates courtside. Agawam Girls' Tennis ended their season with a final record of 12-9. They were able to reach their goal of making Western Mass. In their quarter final game against East Longmeadow, the girls worked their hardest, but unfortunately lost with a final score of 2-3. The returning players look forward to a successful 2011 season, although they are sad to see their senior friends go on to bigger and brighter endeavors.

MICHAEL KOSIOR
CLASS OF 2011

Michael was up for any event this spring, and no matter what it was he always gave it his all. Typically, Mike competed in throwing the discus and javelin, although running the 200 m and 4 x 100 m were not uncommon. One of his best memories was when he ran the 4 x 400 m. "It was totally unexpected and last minute, but it was a great feeling. I did pretty good and it helped us win the race."

Mike is determined to run even faster and throw even farther next season. When asked if there was anything he would change about the season, Mike said that he would not do much differently. Everything about the team was great; the only thing that he would like to see happen is to get a few more runners involved. This would allow for more competitors and a more successful team.

Have you ever heard of a high school team that practiced for six weeks before their first competition? It's okay if you haven't, because not even the coach of boys' track and field had before the Spring 2010 season. "I've never seen anything like it," noted Coach Paul Rieker. As a result of unforeseen circumstances, the team did not compete until the third week of April, a good 38 days after their first practice. Even then, the first meet was a somewhat thrown-together, four-team "quad meet," a makeshift solution that embodied the chaos that was the beginning of their season.

Despite their hardships, the team continued to work hard day in and day out. The practice, though, did pay off. Senior Captain Austin Roberts was able to qualify for Western Mass. for the pole vault and the shot put, and the team's 4 x 400 m relay team tore up the track, consistently winning by a wide margin on numerous occasions. The team endured adverse weather conditions during meets, but was always able to hold their own against the best of their competitors. Returning members are hoping to start anew in 2011, better than ever.

"The meets were my favorite memory. We all enjoyed ourselves, even if we lost the meet. Our team chemistry was outstanding, and I loved being a part of the team." - Anthony Nitri '11

AMY GRINDLE
CLASS OF 2013

Amy Grindle is a promising freshman athlete for the girls' track team. She runs for both the outdoor and indoor track teams. Most people would call her crazy, but she just loves to run. Her events include the 400 m and 600 m races, and she aided the team in its second place finish at the Western Mass. Championships.

Amy personally wishes to make it to states next year. With much-needed encouragement from teammate Ashley Monahan, hopefully she will be able to reach her goal. Her coaches and captains are also great role models, and whether she likes it or not, they always make her push herself just that little bit extra to improve her times.

Amy loves the camaraderie that her teammates bring to every practice and meet. "We all got along, which made for a great season!"

Freshman Zolyane Santiago passes off the baton to Sophomore Leisl Bard in the 4 x 400 m relay race.

Many people would not consider running laps around a track in the spring heat to be their sport of choice, but for this group of girls, it is what they thrived on. The girls' track team is one of the most dedicated groups, prepared to face many mental and physical challenges. Agawam Girls' Track won a total of four meets, but lost four as well. Every day, they worked together and motivated each other to always do their personal best. Megan Breault, Brittney Bussiere, and Jennifer Kapinos fulfilled their obligation as captains by inspiring everyone to try their hardest.

The team had a great finish to their season. During the Western Mass. Division 1 Meet, the girls placed fourth out of 21 teams. They moved on to the Western Mass. All Division Meet, placing second out of 35 teams. Many members of the team placed first in different events including Jennifer Dudek in the mile, Jennifer Kapinos in the 800 m, and Megan Breault in the 100 m high hurdles. The 4 x 800 m relay team competed in the State Championship and came in third place. As a whole, the track team did very well this is year.

COLLIN RITTER
CLASS OF 2012

Collin loves volleyball, because it is "a fast paced, exciting sport to play and watch. I love being in the middle of the action and diving for everything." He did not begin to play competitively until ninth grade, but has enjoyed the game since he was seven.

Starting as a setter and libero as a sophomore, Collin has accomplished much in his high school career, and he still aims to be better at passing and setting. Hopefully by his senior year, the team can win a Western Mass. Championship.

On the court and off, Collin loves to spend time with his teammates. "We bring the best out in each other, and always get along." From try-outs to the last game, everything they have achieved has been done together as a team.

BOYS' VOLLEYBALL

The Agawam Boys' Varsity Volleyball Team came ready to play and dominate their opponents this spring. They started off the season strong, winning their first six games. Senior Captain Michael Vilkhovoy and Junior Captain Andrew LaMotte kept the team motivated as they made every effort to achieve their goal of winning Western Mass. and defeating their long time rival, Chicopee Comp. Everyone always came to practice ready to work to their utmost potential.

The boys finished their season with a record of 16-2. They moved on to the Western Mass. Quarter Finals, defeating Sabis. The next step was a Semifinal game against Minnechaug. Unfortunately, they lost with a score of 1-3. A great accomplishment this season, this year's team was the first team ever to win a game against Chicopee Comp. Even though they did not win the entire match, they were still able to take a game.

Most of the players will be returning next spring, and they are ready to rise to the challenge. They hope to bring the Western Mass. title to Agawam.

Samantha Saracino CLASS OF 2014

Samantha Saracino began cheerleading as a way to simply "stay active." Having joined the squad four years ago, she has not stopped since. She cheers in both the fall and winter, because it is her favorite sport. She also enjoys attending the football games.

Contrary to popular belief, Sam said, "It's a lot of work!" Not only was there a lot of push ups and running involved, but routines are constantly being changed to be better and more challenging. Sam's favorite part of the season was when the team placed first at the Pioneer Valley League Competition.

Hanging out with the girls, she says her team connects really well. Her coach "is very positive and pushes [them] to do [their] best." When talking about the overall season, Sam said, "Party like a rock star, cheer like a champion."

Allison Grubbs, decked out in Agawam gear, takes a break during halftime. Soon, she will be back to cheering as loud as she possibly can.

Carly Fellion, Lauren Booth, and Ashley Higgins move to the beat of music being played by the Marching Mohawks to start the pep rally off right.

Kadie Ilnicki, Hannah McCluskey, and Samantha Saracino perform their routine as part of this year's pep rally during Orange and Brown Day.

Peyton O'Brien is hoisted in the air by her teammates. The team spent several hours perfecting this difficult move.

Carly Fellion takes her cheering quite seriously, as is evident by the expression on her face.

For some students, cheerleading is a way of life. These athletes came together; stronger than ever. The team was always encouraging and stayed positive. The cheerleaders' attitudes and personalities allowed our students to get pumped up for games, and their school spirit even helped some teams pull through to victory. Their overall contribution to the athletic department is more than anyone could have imagined.

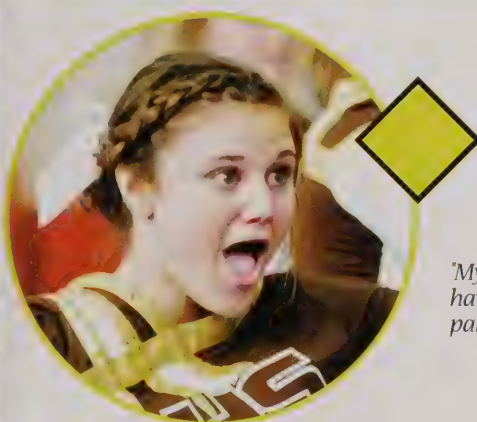

Unlike other sports, cheerleading lasts for two seasons. They cheer in the fall for the football team and in the winter for the basketball team. They also participate in other competitions along the way. The cheerleaders are dedicated to cheering at every home game, no matter what the weather may bring. They practice their cheers, tumbling, and push-ups, so they are prepared to cheer any chance they get.

This was one of the first years that the team was made up primarily of underclassmen, with no seniors participating, but that didn't stop them from taking charge. They had a very successful year this year, and with all members eligible to return next year, they are hoping they can make even more noise next season.

BENJAMIN PARZICH CLASS OF 2013

Benjamin is an impressive runner who has performed admirably during his first year on the team. Last year, Ben played soccer. Although he enjoyed that sport, after a spring season of track, and a little encouragement from friends, Tyler Roberts and Mary Molloy, he realized that running was what he'd rather compete in.

"This season was a lot of fun, and I learned that hard work can really pay off," said Ben. His favorite memory from the season was competing at the PVIAC Championships. It was really exciting for him, because everyone ran well, and many runners broke their personal records. Benjamin is looking forward to continually improving his personal times and performing well at Western Mass.

As summer comes to end, there is only one thing this group of boys can think about: running. Each fall, the boys' cross country team works collectively in order to achieve their personal best, each and every day. There are not many people who can say they enjoy running five or more miles, but for these boys, it is what they live for. Even though running is an individual sport, everyone relies on one another for motivation. Senior Captains Anthony Lucci and Mike Kosior supplied constant support and encouragement for their fellow teammates.

Overall, Agawam had a very successful season, with a final record of six wins and four losses. In the PVIAC Championship, many runners beat their best times, and the team placed 14th out of 32 teams. The Western Mass. Championship was held a week later, where Tyler Roberts, Michael Andre, Anthony Lucci, Richard Schoolcraft, Benjamin Parzich, Michael O'Connor and Matthew Settembro competed. Unfortunately, no one from Agawam placed high enough to move on to the State Championship. The team is looking forward to another thriving season next fall. With numerous underclassmen, the upcoming season seems promising.

"My favorite thing about cross country was running right after school everyday with the guys, who I have come to know as my brothers."
- Michael Gonthier '13

"My favorite part of the season was the PVIAC League Championship. Everyone ran their fastest times, and I think it's a [preview] for next year." - Kevin Urban '13

ALEXANDRA JEANNOTTE
CLASS OF 2013

For Alexandra, cross country is more than just "a dumping ground for other sports." Alexandra really enjoys running, and ever since Mr. Dillon got her involved, it has not only been a great way to stay in shape, but also a stress reliever. Alex loves how everyone on the team pushes each other to be better. It's one of the only sports where "it's all about trying to be better than the person in front of you and behind you."

As a sophomore, Alex has already made so many great memories. From jumping in puddles and telling funny stories, to helping create the three way tie for league champions, it is no wonder why Alex loves cross country. "We are a big weird family." Alexandra is looking forward to another great season with an awesome coach and great friends.

For Agawam Girls' Cross Country, this was a year that many will never forget. The girls constantly pushed themselves forward, and never let anyone on the team give up. The girls add hundreds of miles onto their sneakers in preparation for the long season. Many people would not see cross country as a popular sport, but for this group of young women, it is what they look forward to doing everyday after school. The team did very well, and they ended the season with a final record of 7-2, and a league title. Senior Captains Jennifer Dudek, Samantha Hurley, and Cynthia Macaulay kept the team working to their fullest potential.

A newcomer to the team this year, Coach Carla Warner commented on the team. "We had some of the best runners in Western Mass., as was evident with our three captains this season. Cross Country is one of a few sports that is so physically and mentally demanding of its athletes." The team participated in the PVIAC Championships, and then moved on to the Western Mass. Race. Senior Jennifer Dudek qualified for the State Championships and placed 94th out of 178 runners. The team looks forward to another successful, positive season next fall.

ELIZABETH DEANE
CLASS OF 2012

Junior Elizabeth Deane is playing for the first time this season on the varsity field hockey team. She started playing in junior high and has loved the sport ever since. Lizzie, as she prefers to be called, began as a defender, but slowly made her way to the offensive line scoring several goals this season.

Some of her favorite memories from this season included a competitive game against South Hadley, and the team sleepover at their coach's house. "This team has helped me gain confidence in myself, and I have made so many new friends this year," said Lizzie.

With an "honest and supportive" coach, Lizzie can barely wait for next year to come. She hopes to be a key play maker in her senior year season and an even better teammate and role model.

Shavon Ennis shows her passion as she awaits a pass from a teammate.

Captains Jessica Polaski, Meghan Foley, and Miranda Polaski pose for a photo before returning to the locker room to get ready for practice.

Junior Megan Ripke turns to sprint back to the defensive end, in hopes of clearing the all out of the circle.

Kathryn Leathem carries the ball up the sideline, preparing to make a move as soon as a Longmeadow player approaches.

Agawam Field Hockey had a great season. After losing several seniors last year, the team knew they had to fill in the gaps former players had left behind. They did so admirably. On the forward line, Senior Captain Miranda Polaski and Junior Kristina Kopyscinski led the team in goals. However, their efforts would not have been possible without help from the midfielders. Kathryn Leathem, Caroline Daubitz, and Alexa Guidetti could always be relied on to pass the ball up into the circle. Defensively, Senior Hannah Hellstein and Junior Megan Ripke rarely let a ball go by. On the occasion that a ball got through, Goalie Jillian Newton, who had a total of eight shut-outs this season, was there to clear it away.

In the opinions of many of the players, the best game this season was by far the first game against South Hadley. With both captains out for the game, everyone on the field played to full potential and gave South Hadley the only blemish on their record. The girls continued to do well with a nail biting win against Mahar Regional in the Western Mass. Quarter Finals. Sadly, eight of the team's players would play for the last time as a Brownie four days later in a hard fought semifinal loss to South Hadley.

BRANDON MONTALVO
CLASS OF 2014

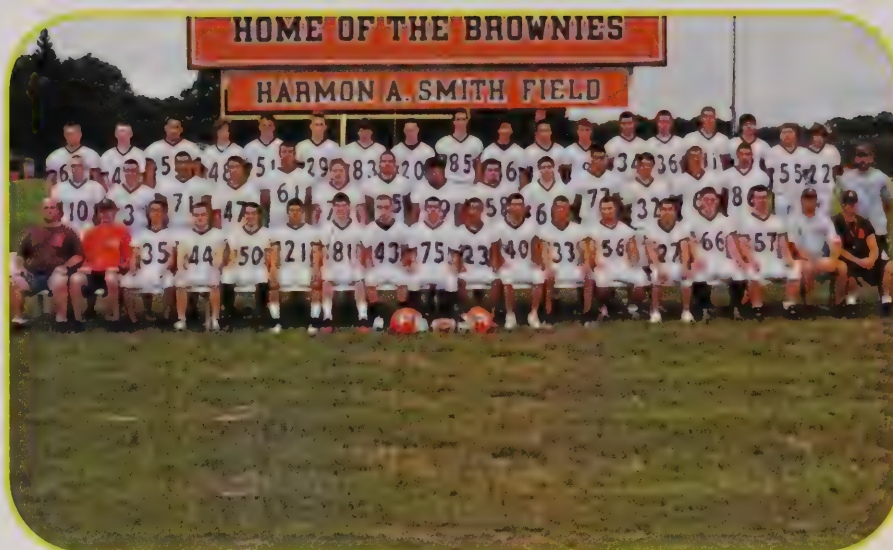

A newcomer to Agawam Varsity Football, Brandon Montalvo started off his first year with great enthusiasm. Brandon has been playing football since he was eight years old, and loves it more than anything. Being a freshman, Brandon had a lot to learn this season, but it wasn't long before he became just another "brother" in a big family.

One of Brandon's greatest accomplishments this season was starting the Thanksgiving Day Game. He has also learned to "never let up, no matter what circumstances." From the help of his coaches and teammates, Brandon looks forward to his upcoming years. He knows what he needs to work on, and cannot wait for the next season to arrive.

Senior Scott Minalga may have been injured and unable to play, but he still came to the games to support his fellow teammates.

FOOTBALL

Athletes, teammates, and friends made up the football team this season. They were supportive of each other on and off the field. Even when things got tough, they pushed through it and made the best of a difficult situation. Although there were some rough patches along the way, there were also many good memories to be had.

The team practiced long hours and double sessions in August to prepare for the season. As the team stepped on the field for their first home game, many fans, dressed in Brownie gear, were present to cheer the team on. They won the game against Ludlow 50-0; a strong start to the season. The players continued to work hard, practicing and playing in the hottest of hot and coldest of cold weather. In addition to Ludlow, the team pulled off wins against Taconnic and Northampton.

Fourteen seniors played their last home game against East Longmeadow. It was an emotional night as players thought back on all the memories and friends they had made throughout their years with the team. Next season, the loss of so many key players may be detrimental, but like every year, the underclassmen will be ready to fill those positions.

"Football is unlike any other sport. You never know when it is going to be your opportunity to make the big play. It's forty-eight minutes of legal violence, a battlefield, a war."
- Kevin Chevalier '11

"I feel like through this season it was the closest team I've been on. Even through the adversity, we stayed together."
- Christopher Goralczyk '12

BRIAN HERSEY CLASS OF 2011

In the fifth grade, Brian Hersey began to golf with his dad as a leisurely activity. He has enjoyed being able to participate in golf as a competitive sport since the ninth grade. Practices for him were always hard work, but a lot of fun. Brian's best memory from a match this year was when he shot a 38. It proved that all his hard work had indeed paid off.

Off the course, Brian said he really enjoyed the bus rides with his teammates. "Chris [Colitti] and David [Farwell] would always sing, and everyone had a great sense of humor." Brian is now a senior, but he hopes to continue to play golf in his free time after high school.

David Poirier watches as his putt rolls straight towards the hole.

This year's senior captains, Kevin Wheeler and Anthony Vecchiarelli, successfully led the team in a great season, stressing the importance of dedication and hard work.

Senior David Farwell uses all his strength to drive the ball as far as he can in a match against Cathedral.

Junior Jesse Armfield concentrates as he makes a putt to score points for his team.

This season for Agawam Golf will be one that the team will never forget. The boys showed what they were all capable of achieving, winning Western Mass., and never once giving up during the course of the season. Golf may be an individualized sport, but everyone relied on each other for constant support and positive feedback.

The captains this year were Anthony Vecchiarelli and Kevin Wheeler. They definitely filled their role on the team by being good role models and always encouraging their teammates. In addition, Patrick Oleksak was a force on the team to be reckoned with.

The team's hard work was demonstrated through their phenomenal record. Agawam Golf finished the season with 18 wins and only 2 losses to a strong competitor, Longmeadow. After finishing up the regular season, the golf team played in the Western Mass. Tournament where, after a long match, they took home first place. Golf became the first team this school year to bring home the Western Mass. Title. In addition, Anthony Vecchiarelli placed first in Western Mass. in the individual competition. Both he and the team also placed at the state level.

GYMNASTICS

KELSEY TEIXEIRA
CLASS OF 2013

For Kelsey, the gymnastics team is like a family, literally. With her mother as a coach, and teammates just like sisters, the bond between all the girls was something Kelsey will never forget. The team set out to not only win meets, but also to smile and laugh whenever possible. Kelsey loved how everyone was always supportive of one another. Everyone was always willing to help each other improve their individual performance.

Kelsey's favorite memory this year was when she received a score of 8.5 on floor exercises. It showed that hard work and dedication will always pay off in the end.

Next year, Kelsey hopes to continue improving on the floor and on the balance beam. She hopes to make even greater memories.

Tiffany Littlefield jumps with certainty, while keeping form during a balance beam exercise.

1st Row: Kristen Fraska, Dabney Rauh, Krista Borsari, Tiffany Littlefield, Amarilys Sepulveda
2nd Row: Mngr Laura Wyckoff, Gillian Keenan, Angelina Pietroniro, Cpt. Michele Lemieux, Courtney Lussier, Priscilla Ortiz Missing: Kelsey Teixeira, Coach Karen Teixeira

During a meet, Angelina Pietroniro focuses on her beam routine, that she finished with complete grace.

Senior Captain Michele Lemieux kept her team motivated during a season of rebuilding.

Priscilla Ortiz concentrates as she sprints down the runway before making a jump onto the vault table.

Dabney Rauh plants her hands on the vaulting table just as she makes her jump over the top.

After losing many key seniors last year, the Agawam Gymnastics Team had a lot to work on this season. No matter what happened, the team kept pushing, always trying their best during each competition. Although the team had difficult competitors, they never gave up. Senior Captain Michele Lemieux kept the girls' spirits up, and was always a teammate that everyone could turn to for encouragement.

Since there are only six teams in the PVIAC Gymnastics Division, Agawam always faces the same competitors. Unfortunately, they were never able to pull out a win. With little room for diversity among the teams, it was difficult to find a team that was on the same level. Despite these setbacks, the girls kept scoring points and trying their best. Whether it was floor exercises, uneven bars, beam routines, or just tumbling, the girls gave it their all at every practice. Thankfully, almost all of the team will be returning next year, and everyone will be able to pick up right where they left off. This year was a rebuilding year for Agawam Gymnastics, and they hope to put some wins on their record next season.

Cian O'Sullivan
CLASS OF 2012

The team is successful, because "we work really hard at practice and in games. We all have the desire to win and we play for each other," said Junior Cian O'Sullivan. Cian began to play soccer when he was only five years old, and he has played ever since. Always supportive of Cian, his father encourages him to have a good work ethic, which shows on the field.

Cian said there would be too many memories to choose just one favorite, so he commented on a few. "The guys loved to goof off on the bus, and Kyle Mutti's ladies' man act in the stretching circle could always provide a good laugh."

Next year, Cian knows it will be tough with the loss of many seniors, but thinks the team is prepared to do good things.

Agawam Boys' Soccer started off the season ready to take on any challenge that they might face. The team trained diligently during pre-season to ensure that they would be in the best shape possible. As the season progressed, the boys' soccer team excelled and won many games. Senior Captains Richard Porfilio, Anthony Nitri, and Conor Rieker took on their responsibility with positive attitude, which brought the team closer than ever.

Finishing up the season with a 7-6-6 record, the team made it to the Western Mass. Tournament. In their first preliminary game, Agawam faced a long time rival, Cathedral, and came out with the victory. A key offensive player, Cian O'Sullivan, scored all of the goals for Agawam. Next, they moved on to the quarter finals against Ludlow. The boys put in tremendous effort to make the tournament for the first time in years. The team played with great intensity, but unfortunately, the season ended there.

Agawam had a great year. The boys plan to bring forward their good experiences from the season. Next year, they hope to perform even better.

This season was eventful for the Agawam Girls' Varsity Soccer Team. They ended the season with a final record of 7-6-6. The team has improved greatly over the past few seasons, and has shown what they are capable of achieving. Senior Captain Laura Masciotra, along with Junior Captains Leah Dominique and Samantha Butt, led the team with positive attitudes and a strong work ethic. During each practice, everyone tried their hardest in order to contribute to the team in the best possible way. Halfway through the season, the team had some ups and downs, but in the end, was able to move forward, making it to Western Mass.

Some newcomers to the team, including Katelyn Cummings and Elyse Cote, provided new offensive and defensive plays to the team. Everyone supported and relied on one another for help.

In the Western Mass. Quarter Finals, the girls played Minnechaug. After a grueling back and forth game, Agawam lost by one with a final score of 2-3. The girls' season was over, but with many returning players, they are looking forward to another successful season next year.

ALYSSA MCNAIR
CLASS OF 2011

Senior Alyssa McNair is an outside hitter, who has been on varsity for three years. She has grown tremendously as a player over the years with encouragement from her teammates, and team manager Andrew LaMotte. The team competed fiercely until the end.

Alyssa will take away so many memories that have made her senior year one to remember. In her opinion, the best game was their last. The team battled West Springfield through five matches, but fell in the quarterfinal game 3-2.

Agawam Girls' Volleyball had a remarkable season this year. The girls finished up the season with a record of 12 wins and 9 losses. Volleyball is a sport that requires complete team cooperation in order to succeed, and Agawam Girls' Volleyball definitely demonstrated that this year. Returning Senior Captain Jessica Colson and Senior Captains Kayla Bertrand and Carole Duquette provided constant stability and encouragement every day. The team had many key wins this year that led them to the Western Mass. Tournament including those against Pioneer Valley and Amherst.

One memorable moment for the team this year was their "Spike It For Life" fund raiser, which was a game played against West Springfield. All proceeds from that game went to breast cancer research. Sophomore Alycia Rackliffe said, "We raised about $3,000 total, and we all wore pink shirts!"

After beating Taconic in a preliminary game, the team faced West Springfield in the Western Mass. Quarter Finals. After playing one of the best games of their season, they unfortunately lost. The team is losing many seniors, but will be ready for whatever the next season will hold.

"My best memory I have from volleyball this year was an epic water fight between the boys' team and the girls' team during my pasta party. The girls won of course!" - Kelly Grindle '11

BOYS' BASKETBALL

TYLER DESROSIER
CLASS OF 2014

Tyler Desrosiers is a freshman, but he sure doesn't play like one. Ever since he was little, he has enjoyed playing basketball.

This year, Tyler joined the team as a point guard, ready to prove what he could do. Immediately, he made an impact on the team, contributing greatly to their success this season. Perhaps his most remarkable play was his game winning basket against Commerce. In Tyler's opinion, it was one of the best games of this season. Not only did he contribute, but "the team worked hard, and we pushed the whole game, never letting up."

With a coach who knows the importance of playing one game at a time, and captains who are always motivational, Tyler has learned a lot about himself and the game of basketball.

Alexander Efstratios is an offensive threat, and a real force to be reckoned with on the court. This can be seen as he steals the ball from his opponent.

Christopher Goralczyk, noticing that the ball has been rebounded, quickly turns the other way to begin a fast break toward the opposing team's basket.

For the first time in years, the boys' basketball team had won enough games to qualify for the post season tournament. They began the season on a strong note with a win against Sci-Tech. After a few tough games, the team pulled together again to post wins at Chicopee Comp., Longmeadow, and Minnechaug. Coach David Federico always played one game at a time. Looking at the task at hand, the team played each opponent with intensity and a desire to win.

Captains Alexander Efstratios and Ryan Labonte were always willing to help the underclassmen reach their goals. Top scorers for this year included Ryan Labonte, as well as Anthony Wallace and Alexander Efstratios. Each contributed well over 150 points this season. The team finished this season with a record of 12-9, after a tough loss to Central in the Western Mass. Quarter Finals.

The team will be losing many seniors. However, there are some very talented underclassmen who contributed to their wins this season, including Freshman Tyler Desrosiers, and Sophomores Patrick Oleksak and Tyler Lyne. The team has high hopes to qualify for the tournament again next year.

Although the team did not win every game, Leisl says they got along really well and they definitely worked to their potential. Her coach always pushed her and the team to be better and try new things. Leisl loves spending time with the team, especially at their weekly pasta parties.

One of Leisl's best memories was when the team played West Springfield at Agawam. Playing their best game of the season, it really showed that their hard work really did pay off.

As the Agawam Girls' Varsity Basketball team began their season, they knew that there was a lot of work to be done. The team lost many strong players from the last season, so this was a bit of a rebuilding year for them. After losing their first three games, the girls finally pulled out a win against Central. They kept their momentum going and won a few more games. Underclassmen Alycia Rackliffe and Samantha Howe really stepped up this year, scoring many key points for the team.

No matter what, the girls never gave up. The team became very close as the season progressed, and always enjoyed being around one another. Whether it was pasta parties, practices, or games, the girls kept having fun, while always learning and growing along the way. Senior Captains, Jessica Frawley and Nicole Johnson, fulfilled their positions, maintaining a strong team bond. The girls ended their run with a record of eight wins and twelve losses. They finished the season strong, winning four of their last five games, and showing much promise for next year. Since the majority of the team will be returning, they hope to develop as a team, and get even more wins on their record.

"We have really come together as a team, and played better as the season went on. It's been a lot of fun." - Mary DeForge '12

"It was hard being one of the only freshmen on the team, but the upperclassmen were really nice and supportive." - Margaret Frawley '14

JOSEPH SHEA
CLASS OF 2014

Joseph Shea got involved with hockey through his father. However, his teammates and coaches were the ones who really encourage him to work hard and be the best he could be when playing the game. Living for the excitement, physicality, and fast pace of every pass, Joe has truly developed a passion for the sport.

The first goal Joe scored is his strongest memory. It was in that instant that he realized that he could be a big play maker for the team. "We are a family off and on the ice. We work hard together and we solve problems together."

Joe is looking forward to another great three seasons playing hockey. He truly hopes every year is as good as this one was, and looks forward to taking to the ice again for the Brownies.

Stephen Buoniconti prepares to take the face-off after an offensive penalty.

It was a successful season for the hockey team. The boys ended the season with a remarkable record of 15-4-1, stealing their league title going 8-0 with wins against Amherst, Belchertown, Easthampton, and Greenfield. Both the offense and defense contributed to the success of the team this season. Captain Devin Basile was a crucial part, having over 300 saves in goal this season. Senior Captain Andrew Wallis was also a key player on defense this season. Offensively, lead scorers included Stephen Buoniconti and Captain Kevin Wheeler. Reaching an amazing milestone this season, Wheeler scored his 100th career point, a feat rarely accomplished.

After a great regular season, the team entered post season play, ranked second, behind Holyoke High School. They played the quarter final round against Belchertown, winning 5-1. The team then continued on to the semifinals. This time, they faced Amherst, winning with little difficulty, 4-1. Those two post season wins advanced the team to Western Mass. Finals. With stands full of orange and brown, with a little white mixed in, the team fought to the buzzer, never giving up, in a tough 2-3 loss to first seed Holyoke.

ICE HOCKEY

MICHAEL ANDRE
CLASS OF 2013

Michael Andre has been involved in running at AHS for two years now, but he ran his first season of indoor track this year, as a sophomore. Competing in the 1 mile, 2 mile, and 1000m races, as well as a part of the 4x400m relay, he enjoys the 1 mile event the most. Mike saw a lot of improvement in this race over the season, beating his personal record with a time of 4:56 at the Western Mass. meet.

Michael continues to work hard in practice, and Coach Pryce always pushes him to improve. More than that though, Mike looks to his competition from power houses such as Northampton. He strives to be as good as they are.

Mike has a promising next two years at the high school, and he hopes to make it to States before he leaves.

Patrick Rieker, a new arrival to the team, competes in the two mile run, a distance race. His freshman season looked promising, and he hopes to contribute more to the team in years to come.

Senior Captain Conor Rieker attempts the high jump during the second meet. Though he did not score, Conor still executed proper form in this event.

Richard Schoolcraft runs at full speed during the first leg of the boys' 4x400 meters relay race during the team's meet in Boston at the Reggie Lewis Track and Field Center. The team was only a second away from qualifying for the state competition.

It would take a seriously dedicated group of individuals to want to spend extended periods of time outside in the harsh winter weather. Who would want to spend their holiday break waking up at 8 A.M. to go sweat? What craziness would have to manifest itself to drive one to want to spend their Fridays out of town, for two months, in a uniform? For the boys indoor track team, they would do it all in a heartbeat, gladly. Every day was a mission. Planks, ladders, push-ups, relays: a routine with a purpose for the whole group.

The 2010-2011 season was one for exploring new events for many. Senior Jesse Conklin qualified in the 55m high hurdles, having never run the race prior to this season. Senior Matthew Perry's 42' 10½" shot put throw qualified him for the state championship. Matthew only began throwing last spring. Sophomore Benjamin Parzich explored running longer distances after discovering his strengths in cross country. His brother, Kyle Parzich, qualified for Western Mass. in the 600m, running that for the first time this year as well. The boys look forward to being more competitive next year, building on the successes they had this year.

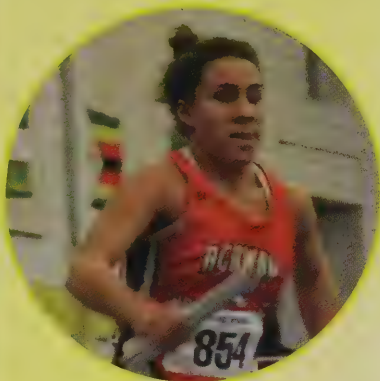

"I like running. It makes me feel free. It's a great feeling, when you run a good race and get a new best time." - Jonathan Alicea '13

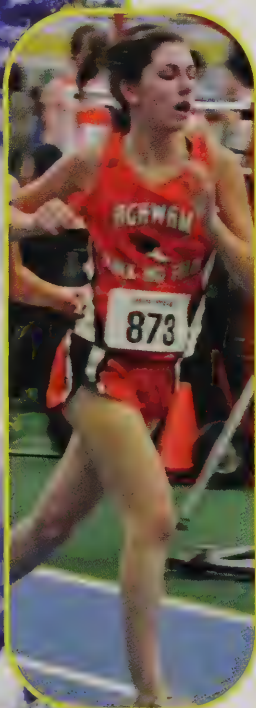

"[Indoor track] is fun, but you have to put a lot of work into it." - Christopher Jennison '14

MORGAN CASEY
CLASS OF 2014

Morgan Casey originally saw herself as only playing soccer in high school. However, she decided to give indoor track a try. Little did she know, track would soon become a sport that she really enjoyed. "I like to run. It gets your butt in shape," she said while laughing.

Some of her best memories have come from meets and bus rides. Morgan looks to Coach Pryce and Captain Jennifer Dudek for their encouragement, because they "always push me to my full potential and make me a better runner." She competed in a total of five events, including several at Western Mass. She also ran the first leg of the 4x400m at States. With her lucky anklet on at all times, Morgan has high hopes to place in an individual race at Western Mass. next season.

Freshman Ashley Lockwood gives it her all as she turns onto the third lap of the 600m race.

Taylor Lunden proved to be a vital asset to the team this season. She qualified for Western Mass. and States in several events, including the 300m, 600m, 1000m, and 1 mile.

Allison McCluskey can be seen soaring over the 55m high hurdles, a task which requires great speed, agility, and coordination.

The girls' track team is full of dedicated athletes, ranging from freshmen to seniors, always ready to rise to the challenge at hand. This season the hard work definitely seemed to pay off. In the regular season the team went 7-2. With the exception of injuries, almost every girl ran in a meet or contributed to a win this year. Many of those runners and field athletes qualified for Western Mass. as well. A total of fourteen girls participated at Smith College on February 4th. Jennifer Dudek and Caroline Daubitz scored points in the 1000m, while Ashley Monahan and Taylor Lunden placed in the 600m and 1 mile races, respectively. The 4x800m and 4x400m relays also scored for Agawam.

The team then trained for two weeks before heading to the Reggie Lewis Center for Div. II State Championships. As a whole, the team placed 11th. Taylor Lunden did admirably well in the mile, breaking the school record with a time of 5:22. Jennifer Dudek, Taylor Lunden, Caroline Daubitz, and Ashley Monahan also broke the school record for the 4x800m relay, and qualified for the All Division State meet. The team may be losing several seniors, but the underclassmen are prepared to pick up the slack.

"Runner's high is already the best; to know that there are people out there who become your second family, and love it just as much, makes it even better." - Kaeli Howard '13

JOSEPH CECCHI
CLASS OF 2013

"The best thing about our team is that everyone gets along really well, and we all love to ski," said sophomore Joseph Cecchi. Joe has been skiing since he was really little, when his parents started to bring him to mountains. Perhaps that is why he is so good. Joseph competed in Western Mass. and States this season, contributing to the team's overall success on more than one occasion.

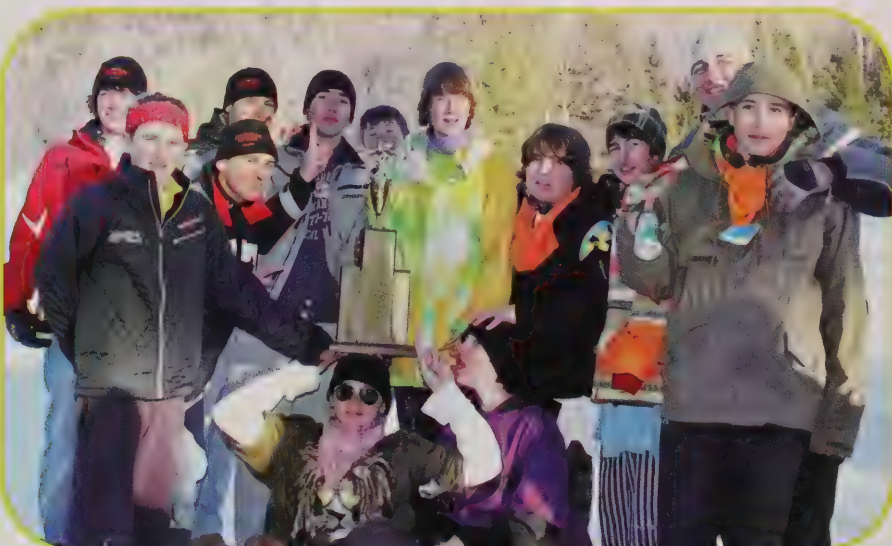

Joe especially loves to hang out with his teammates on the mountain, and going on tuck runs after Individuals. Next season, he hopes that the team can win the division, and he hopes that as an upperclassman he can encourage the freshmen to become highly dedicated to the sport. Doing so, he hopes on improving the program for years to come.

Junior Patrick Shea stands excitedly as he waits for the rest of the team to make their runs down the mountain at a race at Berkshire East.

The team huddles together for a picture after receiving their trophy for winning their league title this season.

Joseph Cecchi, Jesse Armfield, Jonathan Reidy, and Patrick Shea hold individual champion trophies for placing in the top ten of their division during the course of the season.

Freshman Christopher Gloster was a vital component to this year's team. He was able to achieve very fast times in giant slalom races scoring additional points for the team.

Junior Captain Jesse Armfield begins his tuck as he skies quickly through the course, ready to get his fastest time yet.

For the Agawam Boys' Ski Team, this year will be one they never forget. With one of the biggest turnouts yet, the team had twelve boys compete. Ski racing is not your every day sport, and these boys took it on with dedication and determination. After a few weeks of training in December, the team was finally able to hit the slopes. It was there that they realized just how strong of a team they would really be. After placing first and having a time ten seconds faster than everyone else, the team knew right away what they would be able to accomplish.

As the season finished up, it was clear that the boys would place first for Western Mass. in their division. They placed first in every single race. Captain Jonathan Reidy, Captain Jesse Armfield, Joseph Cecchi, and Patrick Shea all finished in the top ten skiers for their division.

The team became very close throughout the course of the season. After long bus rides and numerous hours on the mountain, the team was able to create a bond that will carry over into next season. Since there were no seniors, everyone is looking forward to returning next year and defending their first place title.

JORDYN CONWAY

Jordyn Conway may only be a freshman, but she has made a lasting impact on the ski team this year. She first began skiing when she was three years old with the support of her parents. Jordyn has loved it ever since. She says that her teammates 'are always really encouraging. They have pushed me never to give up and to try my hardest.'

Her fondest memory of the season was when she got her fastest time, only two spots away from making the top thirty. Jordyn really enjoyed the team's sleepover and making bandannas for Individuals Day. Jordyn looks forward to the upcoming seasons, but will always remember the lasting friendships that were made this year. She has a bright future ahead of her on the slopes.

This season, the team got along very well, as can be seen here, with Seniors Mari Leclerc and Mary Kate Cavallo enjoying their time on the slopes with Freshman Jordyn Conway and Junior Heather Gonyeau.

1st Row: Mary Kate Cavallo, Mari Leclerc, Chloe Scherpa, Cpt. Hannah Hellstein, Rebecca McKiernan
2nd Row: Megan Cecchi, Jordyn Conway, Amanda St. Laurent, Heather Gonyeau, Athletic Director David Stratton, Mary Reidy Missing: Coach Scot Brzoska

This year's only junior, Heather Gonyeau, makes her way through the slalom course with quick turns at high speed.

Junior Chloe Scherpa blocks down the gates to maintain her speed during the State Championships held at Berkshire East.

Freshmen Rebecca McKiernan and Mary Reidy pose for a photo after Rebecca completed her run down the mountain.

Mary Kate Cavallo's favorite race is the giant slalom, because she speeds down the hill as fast as she can.

Ski racing is a sport that may be unfamiliar to many people, but for this group of girls it is the sport to which they dedicate their winter months. The season begins with "dry land" training, followed by snow practices, and eventually races. The many snow storms this year never held back the team; in fact it made skiing even more enjoyable.

The Agawam Girls' Ski Team had a very successful season. They worked their hardest at each and every practice, and it showed during their races. Agawam had many meets where they consistently placed in the top ten of their division. Senior Captain Hannah Hellstein, as well as Sophomores Chloe Scherpa and Amanda St. Laurent, were able to keep Agawam competitive. A freshman this year, Megan Cecchi, blew everyone away when she placed in the top thirty during a race. One big accomplishment for the team was coming in first at their final race. With this last push, the team was able to take second place for the overall season. During Individuals Day, comparable to a Western Mass. Tournament, everyone raced very well. Chloe Scherpa took second place at the meet. The team looks forward to next season, but are sad to see their senior friends leave.

"I love skiing because it is so competitive, and the team gets along great!"
- Amanda St. Laurent '13

"Racing was a lot of fun and the team got along so well. It was an awesome season!"

MICHAEL KOSIOR
CLASS OF 2011

Michael Kosior first began swimming with the encouragement of his close friends, Zachary Niziolek and Mariesa Negosanti. Michael has really enjoyed his time on the swim team and has benefited greatly from it. He says that the team this year was closer than ever, and he will always remember the friendships that were built.

Michael contributed to the team in the pool as well. His best memory was when he scored an eight on a dive. One thing that Michael says makes the team so successful is their will power. They were most successful against Monson. "It was one of our best meets, even though we didn't win." Mike understands the true meaning of being a teammate, and everyone on the team looks up to him.

Adam Ardolino takes an initial jump before making his dive into the pool.

Missing: Roger Bruso, Mark Plasse Jr., Nolan Sheridan

Jesse Shepard worked hard all season to perfect his technique and build the strength necessary to properly execute the butterfly, one of the more difficult strokes in swimming.

Brendan Baker dismounts the starting block with a dive to begin his race.

Roger Brusco stands patiently while the national anthem plays before a home meet held at the Agawam Junior High School.

Stephen Laflamme swims his leg of the 400m freestyle relay, and helps his team place first at their meet against Turners Falls.

The boys of the swimming and diving teams worked together throughout the season, forming one cohesive team. They each compete on their own and sometimes in small groups for medley races. However, they banded together as one team for the common goal of not only winning, but becoming the best athletes that they could be.

A close team bond can be difficult to achieve in a sport that is so individualized, but the boys were always there for each other; cheering on their teammates from the sidelines, and daring each other to break their friends' records and times. They also got together as a team for their weekly pasta parties. These gatherings help to get the boys energized for their matches, and reinforces the importance of always working together as a whole. It is easy to understand why this team got so close. They all share the same love for a good competition in the water.

The team performed well this year, with a season record of 8-3. Although they are losing many key seniors this year, many of the younger students plan to step up and fill the shoes of those seniors who they look to for their drive and support.

"I've never swam worse events in my life, but I solved a Rubik's cube underwater, so we'll call it even."

KAITLYNN MCLAUGHLIN
CLASS OF 2012

Kaitlynn McLaughlin is a junior, and has been swimming on the varsity team since her freshman year. Kaitlynn began swimming eight years ago, after Gabrielle Calvanese convinced her to try the sport. This season, Kaitlynn primarily swam the 100m backstroke.

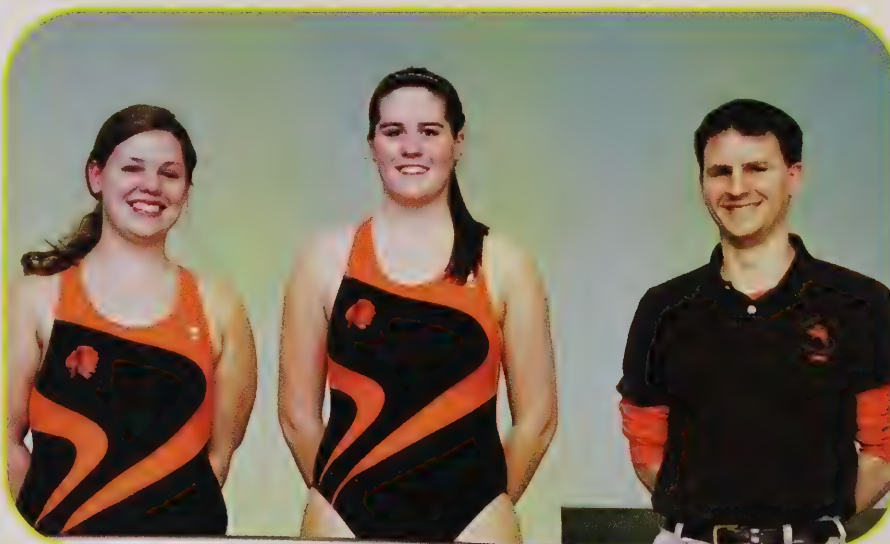

Her best memory was making the medley relay for Western Mass. It was a great feeling, because "it's individual, but it's still bigger than you." The close-knit nature of the swim team and the passion that everyone gives to every meet makes it all worth it. "[My teammates] encourage me to do better, and it gets me pumped up." Next season, as a senior, Kaitlynn will lead the team as a captain. She hopes to qualify for states in the 100m backstroke.

Kendra Matland keeps a consistent pace as she pushes it to the end in the 100 yard backstroke.

Michaella Vecchiarelli placed first this season against West Side and Holyoke in 1m diving.

The girls' swimming and diving team had a strong season this year, finishing with a record of 8-4. They practiced day after day, becoming the best team they could be, and became a very close group because of it. The swim team is one of the biggest teams in the school, and it has a wide variety of participants. From swimmers to divers, butterfly to breaststroke, these girls all have their strengths and weaknesses. But it is these differences that have allowed them to become such a competitive team. They help each other with their difficulties, and look to each other for inspiration and friendly competition, always trying to one-up each other, and to score points for the whole team.

The girls say is their favorite part of swimming is that it is very individual, but yet still a team sport. Captains Alicia Hulse and Mariesa Negosanti both pushed their teammates as hard as they could, because they knew that they had the potential to be the best. The team's weekly pasta parties kept everyone energized and in the same mind frame; swimming could be fun and they were there to be with friends, even though it's a lot of work.

"Swimming is an individual and team effort, but I have to push myself to improve."
- Lauren Dougherty '13

"This season has been my favorite yet, because we all connected so well, and came close to winning the division. We were all like one big family."

GIRLS' SWIMMING

PASQUALE BASILE CLASS OF 2014

Although many wrestlers do not have the opportunity to participate at such a young age, Pasquale Basile has been involved in wrestling since third grade. Patsy, as he is commonly referred to by his teammates, has been an asset to the team this season. "My first varsity win was so exciting," Patsy said. While his first win was the most exciting, it was not his only, as he beat two other competitors this year.

Patsy said a lot of the team's success had to do with the coach this season. "He was new, but he made us step it up, and helped us to learn new [techniques]." The coach may have helped them learn all the right moves, but Patsy also admitted, referring to his team, "We really need to push ourselves. Ultimately every fight comes down to how hard we work."

Anthony Caracciolo braces the other wrestler at the beginning of a match, trying his best to get good positioning.

Damian Fisher Burns practices several hours every week to improve his takedown techniques.

Cpt. Connor Liebel, Cpt. Joshua Heinbokel, Cpt. Thaddeus Dobek, and Coach Anthony Stork are positive role models for their teammates this season.

Joseph Cosgrove moves strategically to take down his opponent at the Tomkiel Tournament.

Ruben Melendez is at a stand still with his opponent. The next move could be vital to winning the match.

During the past few months, the wrestling team has taken control of the mats. They practiced every day after school, and were able to stay successful throughout their season. They ended with a record of 11-8, and placed second in the Valley League standings. The wrestling team also took first at the Phil Tomkiel Tournament, showing just how strong they were early on in the season.

The team had a successful season, especially at home, where their record was 5-1. The captains were able to lead by example for the Brownies this season. Along with the rest of the team, they were hard workers who were not ready to settle for anything less than the best. Joshua Heinbokel, Thaddeus Dobek, and Connor Liebel were not only the team captains, but the key contenders for the Western Mass. title. Since wrestling is as much an individual sport as it is a team sport, they relied on those three teammates to really set the tone for the meet, and to motivate everyone else to do their best.

Although they are graduating two of their main competitors, the team is sure that the current underclassmen will step up to fill in their empty spots, hoping to do even better next year.

What can we say to our 'Bella Mia.' Congratulations! We can't believe you're graduating already; time goes by so fast! Your brother, your sister, and now it's your turn. You were a beautiful baby, and now a gorgeous young lady. Your father and I are very proud of the choices you have made in everything, from school to friends. You are a fine example of a young lady. You're kind, loyal, honest, and you carry yourself with class. We are very proud to call you our daughter. You will without a doubt succeed; you have a gift and natural ability. You are the 'crème de la crème,' and when you have your pastry shop, I will be behind every step of the way (cleaning up). It's funny how when I thought I was there for you, all along, you were there for me. You truly are an angel from heaven! Remember New York City, Phantom of the Opera, our shows, the gym, and of course, "I'll Be." You're my best friend; I love you with all my heart and soul.

Love always and forever,
May God bless you and keep you safe,

Hey Allie,

From the day you were born, you have been a determined and self-motivated, young lady. You've brought Dad and I so much happiness that we can't imagine life without our "princess." My mom used to say, "As soon as you have a child, you take your heart out of your chest and you give it away." She was right, there is no love stronger.

Your discipline, your smile, and your enthusiasm are enviable. You give your all to everything you do, honey, which is why you will meet with success.

Tom,

Four years have gone by way too fast. It seems like only yesterday that we were putting you on the bus for kindergarten! You've grown into a fine young man, a great kid, and an even better son and brother. Mom and I have given you many things, among them: love, roots, and wings. So spread them all and grow them strong. And remember, "the future's so bright, your gonna need shades!"

TOM BORSARI

How time goes by. To me, you will always be that little girl that I held in my arms not so long ago. I am so proud to be your aunt.

You have always been a part of our lives. Some trips you may not remember, but you were the best shopping and traveling buddy, whether on the long trips to get Myssie at Bridgewater, to the cape, or so many of the other adventures we've had. You had so much fun trying to keep up with Myssie and Jessica, whether it was going to soccer or softball games, swimming, or rollerskating. You also really enjoyed running around, pestering Thomas and Richard. No matter what, we always enjoyed having you with us!

My days will not be the same now that you have graduated. There will be no more complaining, teasing, and drama, now that your library locker is empty. It has been awesome to see you each and every day.

A new chapter is just beginning for you. I know you will make the most of it. Don't stop reaching for your goals. Remember that our door is always open to you, no matter what.

We all love you very much!

"Success is piece of mind, which is a direct result of self-satisfaction in knowing you made the effort to do your best, to become the best, that you are capable of becoming."
- John Wooden

Jessica,

The first time we held you, our joy was indescribable. That joy has continued through the years watching you grow into the intelligent, beautiful, and determined young woman you are today. The time went by too fast.

We can't believe the time has come to let you go. We miss you already!

Dream big, you will accomplish anything you set your mind to. Know as you enter the next chapter of your life, we will always love you and be here to support you. We are so proud!

Love you,
Mom and Dad

Jessica,

Good luck in college!

Love,
Eric

To Mari Catherine,

We want you to know what a rare blessing it is to have a child that makes every moment a privilege and a joy: from the tiny "jokey" toddler who always brought laughter, to the tiny girl who drew smiles just by walking into a room; from the sporty tomboy who attacked and conquered every obstacle, to the energetic teen who took on every challenge with tenacity and a sense of fair play; from the dedicated student who never had to be told to do homework or stay out of trouble, to the vibrant, young woman who is as genuine as you are humble.

Never has a student been more poised for collegiate success or a person more worthy of an incredible future. Always thank God for your unmatched sense of humor and boundless curiosity, your generous nature and exceptional intelligence, and maybe above all, your stubborn temper and unwillingness to be coerced. Hold on to your dreams and remain true to your innate character. It is with immense pride and enduring love that we look forward to the next phase of your life, and it is with intense sadness that we attempt to imagine a home without you in it every day. Never has a daughter been more inspiring, appreciated, or loved. We are in awe of you and will always be here for you. We congratulate you and we celebrate the gift of you in our lives!

Forever and always,
Mom and Dad

MARI CATHERINE LECLERC

Shall I compare thee to a Summer's day?
Thou art more lovely and more temperate:
Rough winds do shake the darling buds of May,
And Summer's lease hath all too short a date:
Sometime too hot the eye of heaven shines,
And often is his gold complexion dimm'd;
And every fair from fair sometime declines,
By chance or nature's changing course untrimm'd;

But thy eternal Summer shall not fade
Nor lose possession of that fair thou owest;
Nor shall Death brag thou wanderest in his shade,
When in eternal lines to time thou growest:
So long as men can breathe, or eyes can see,
So long lives this, and this gives life to thee.

Sonnet 18, William Shakespeare

MARI CATHERINE LECLERC

Mari,

When we were both younger, I always hoped to set a good example for you. Now that we are both "grown up," I find myself looking up to you because of the person you are and everything you have accomplished. Not only are you my favorite sister, but you are among my closest friends. I am continually inspired and amazed by you; by your strength to overcome obstacles and the remarkable, confident, beautiful, young woman you are.

Despite how things always change, and how complex and challenging "life" can get, I can rely on your uncontrollable laughter within minutes of being with you. I know in my heart that our unique friendship and our shared sense of humor will never change! What can be better than a sister who is a trusted friend, a person I admire and trust, and someone who can raise my spirits and make me laugh in any situation. I am so unbelievably proud of you, and I know you will continue to amaze me through college and wherever life takes you. I will always be here to help you along any path you choose.

Love you so much,
Erinn

Hey Mari,

Congrats! You made it. Thanks for setting yet another example of what I need to do to beat you and Erinn. Seriously, you were great all four years, and it was fun hanging out with you sometimes. Since we don't have to be at AHS at the same time, I'll even admit that I'm proud of everything you've done and to have you for a sister, too. Good luck at college, while I'm trying out the "only child" thing!

Love, your favorite brother,
Jeff

P.S. You're fine with me changing your room into a putting green, right?

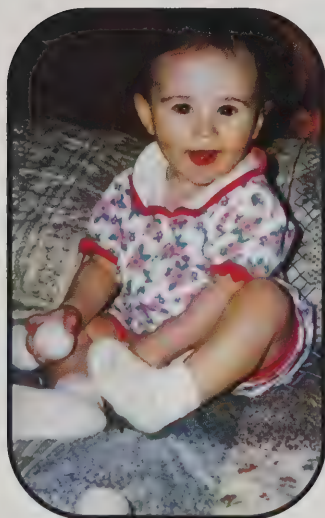

Shiv,

Congratulations. We are so proud of you! Believe in yourself and experience life to the fullest. Remember we will always be there for you.

Love you lots,

DEVIN BASILE

Meg,

You have worked hard to reach this point in your life, and we are so proud of you. No matter what challenges you faced growing up, you always managed to keep a positive attitude. Whether it was the operation you had to correct your hearing or the ACL surgery freshman year, you never got frustrated. You continue to amaze us every day. Like with dogs, you have learned to conquer your fears, and to love what life has to offer. We have watched you blossom right before our eyes!

As you go off to college, we will miss your outgoing personality and the love you bring to our family each and every day. We know that you will only flourish, for you can be the independent person you'll need to be. We only hope for the best the future may bring. Success is in your future, and remember that your guardian angel "Grandpa" will always be watching over and be proud of you!

EVENTS AND DINING

Creating a high school yearbook is a challenging endeavor that involves good communication, teamwork, and most of all, the support of our high school community. Without the help of the students, faculty, and staff of Agawam High, the publication of this book as a whole, as well as the quality, would not have been possible. However, there were some individuals who have been extra helpful in bringing this book through the storm, and they deserve our most sincere thanks, for we are truly grateful.

Ms. Risa Nitkin, our representative from Lifetouch Publishing, provided some wonderful ideas for the cover and endsheets, worked out technical issues as they arose, as well as provided a sunny attitude to the sometimes dampened spirits of the staff whenever she came to visit. The lollipops and sweets were awesome too!

Walt Steinmetz and his staff, especially Julie and Eric, have always been there to support us in our endeavors. Steinmetz Photography was instrumental in providing many of the photographs we used in this edition of the Sachem, including many of the senior photographs, candids in the school halls and classrooms, sports candids, as well as club and team shots. No matter what we needed, given the tight time frame as well as crazy rain or snow storms, they rose to the challenge to help us make a magnificent product. We were also so happy to see Melissa rejoin us in our efforts!

Accurate information is needed to produce any yearbook, especially one of the quality we strive for, and the secretarial staff has always been more than helpful to us in our work. Mrs. Ledger assisted us in providing accurate lists of students and their years of graduation, as well as helping us to obtain many of the pictures of students we would otherwise be unable to have in time for publication. Mrs. Poggi helped us by generating lists of student names, addresses, and homerooms. Mrs. Moffatt and Mrs. Truelove helped us on a regular basis by tracking down students as well as fielding phone calls and deliveries from parents and advertisers. A thunderous round of applause must go to both Mrs. Montagna and Mrs. Kline for aiding us with scanning photos into our galleries, proofing pages, and helping with odd jobs behind the scenes that needed to be completed throughout the year to keep us on track. In addition, our librarian, Mrs. Marley, also deserves our thanks, for she helped to research articles for the endsheets.

Finally, we want to thank Mrs. Costello for her help in providing information on the athletics programs and the countless hours she spent editing the sports pages to make them as accurate as possible. She worked tirelessly to help us track down team and captain photos, missing scores, and names of those active and hard to identify Brownies. She made our job much easier by helping us avoid an avalanche of work and stress, as our deadlines, like a thunderstorm, rolled in.

We hope you enjoy this book as much as we enjoyed working on it. Thank you for the opportunity to record the sunny, rainy, and snowy days of your past, as you step out into the bright sunshine of your future.
